Local dancers participate in Mountain Dance Concert

Several students from the Bravo!Dance School, Wilkes-Barre, were invited to participate in the sixth annual Mountain Dance Concert held January 27 in East Stroudsburg. It was sponsored by the Pa. Dance Network Inc., Elizabeth Gibbons, PhD, and the East Stroudsburg University Music Department.

This event provides regional choreographers the opportunity to showcase their work and dancers the chance to see different approaches to dance, thus learning to accept other viewpoints and methods outside their home studios. Among Bravo students attending were Back Mountain residents Whitney

Adams, Amy Puffenberger, Kira Szulborski and Jaime Verazin. Their pieces were choreographed by Trinette Singleton, ballet/school director and Lynne Mariani, jazz instructor at Bravo. Bravo!Dance School will be holding a summer program in July and August; the PA Dance Network will offer a summer program August 8-11 at the East Stroudsburg University. Information about either or both programs can be obtained by calling Bravo!Dance at 826-0028.

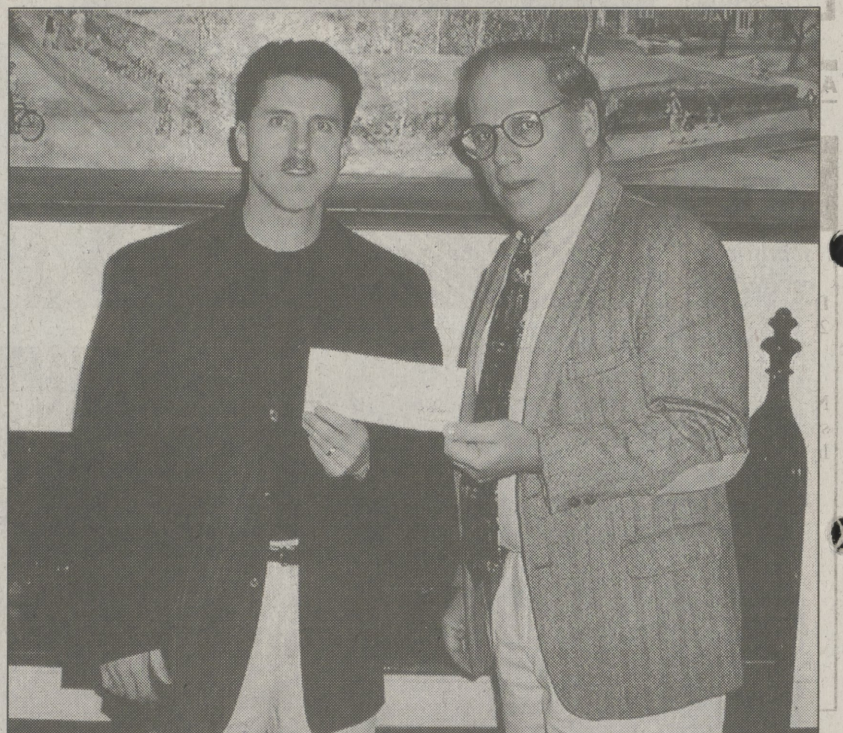

Lake-Lehman grad spends semester in London

Courtney Bouthot of Shavertown, was one of 28 Susquehanna University juniors who participated in the seventh annual London Program of the Sigmund Weis School of Business during the 2001 fall semester.

The program is designed to provide students with an international experience to develop and expand their learning capabilities and broaden their perspectives about possible careers. While abroad, students completed three business courses: quantitative business methods and operations management, European operations and management and organizational behavior. They were also educated in British theatre, during which they attended a variety of plays. The students toured various businesses and banks in England, France and Germany. British theatre and European operations are exclusive to the London Program. Courses on British theatre and management and organizational behavior are taught by British professors.

A marketing major at Susquehanna University and 1999 graduate of Lake-Lehman High School, Bouthot is the daughter of Fernand and Judy Bouthot.

The grant money came from the ExxonMobil Educational Alliance Team and will be used to support R&R days. "Respect and Responsibility" days occur three times each year at the Lower School, following a theme such as "Be True to Your School," or "Responsibility for Myself: Overcoming Weaknesses with Strengths." Each class participates in a community service project, working or raising funds for various charitable organizations. Pictured, from left are Newell and Burbank.
