Bazaar was full of fun for all ages, and tastes

By ELIZABETH ANDERSON
Post Correspondent

Food, fun, games and entertainment was what the Eighth Annual Gate Of Heaven Bazaar was all about this past weekend.

The Pixie Chicks entertained the crowd dressed in pink and black and looking like Madonna in the 80s. The Chicks, ages 11 to 14, are from Carbondale and have performed all over Northeastern PA and have appeared on Channels 2, 28, and 16, on the Jerry Lewis Telethon and on the Today show in New York City. Known for their renditions of popular 50s songs, the girls tried out their new sound of 80s music Friday night to a very pleased audience of bazaar goers.

But the Sister Act really gathered the crowd. The booths lost their business while people gathered to watch the hilarious "nuns" and their singing comedy act, a take-off on the Whoopi Goldberg movie. Billed as "Our Very Own Sister Act. The Lord Have Mercy! Sisters of the Heavenly Gates," the singing nuns first formed in 1992 from the choir at Gate of Heaven Church. They now do 30 to 40 shows a year.

Hot dog vendor says he's being stonewalled

□ Officials don't respond to him, or to a reporter

HARVEYS LAKE — Bob Prescott just wants some answers.

The problem is, he can't seem to find anybody who can give them to him.

And so far, neither can The Dallas Post.

A week of phone calls to borough officials resulted in not a single returned message, a problem Prescott, a.k.a. "Hot Dog Bob," says he has had for almost a year.

"(Borough officials are) making it totally impossible," said Prescott. "The solicitor of Harveys Lake Borough just will not entertain any questions from me. He gets verbally abusive if I ask any questions at all, and I don't even think some of these questions have anything to do with my cart right now."

Prescott has been fighting Harveys Lake Borough for almost a year now for the right to sell his hot dogs at Pole 4 Lakeside Drive, and feels the borough council, zoning hearing board and police department are doing nothing more than keeping him tied up in a legal web.

"Why aren't these laws being enforced against anyone else?" Prescott said of the borough's zoning ordinance. "It seems to me that the borough is us-

Seniors introduce field hockey to their proteges

LEHMAN TWP. — Take three superb Lake-Lehman High School field hockey players, add 50 elementary school girls and a week of summer sun and you get one great senior project.

Lake-Lehman seniors Megan DeCesaris, Meredith Edwards and Jenna Fine decided on the field hockey camp as their senior project early last summer when they were helpers to last year's coaches. This year, the fourth year the camp has been a senior project, they are the head coaches.

DeCesaris has assisted with the annual summer camp since she was in eighth grade, so choosing it as a senior project was no great leap.

"I've actually wanted to do this since I was a freshman," DeCesaris said. "I saw my sister do it and I saw how much fun she had."

The three seniors handled every aspect of the summer camp, from ordering the equipment to recruitment. They spoke at all three of the elementary schools in the Lake-Lehman School District in the spring, with letters to parents and registration slips in hand, encouraging the young girls to sign up.

The 53 participants took home their balls, shin guards, mouth guards and sticks, along with t-shirts designed by DeCesaris, Edwards and Fine.

The annual summer camp taught the fourth, fifth and sixth grade girls the basics of field hockey. The blue Dolphins, the pink Flamingos and the green Turtles played each other after learning the ba-

Huntsville UMC pastor retires? Not exactly

By SANDY PEOPLES

HUNTSVILLE - At age 87, Rev. Rudolph Libeck is leaving his post at the Huntsville United Methodist Church, but does not plan to just sit back and smell the roses. Most people, having reached his age, would already be retired, but Libeck has recently accepted yet another assignment at the Askam United Methodist Church near Nanticoke.

"I have been a pastor for more than 60 years," said Libeck. "And I have been here at the Huntsville church for 11 of those years. I leave with mixed feelings. I really enjoy the people here and the sense of community. We have made tremendous strides in recent years. They are wonderful people. But now I look forward to my new assignment."

Libeck was born in Latvia and served in the Merchant Marines during World War II. He fought in the invasion of Normandy in 1944. After the war he came to live in the United States. He and his wife Carol have been married for 26 years. He is a doctor of psychology and served for many years as the supervising chaplain at the state hospital in Clarks Summit. He also served at the Dalton Baptist Church for 17 years.
