Sem Players will stage 'Baker's Wife'

A new revival of the delightful romantic musical "The Baker's Wife" will take the stage at Wyoming Seminary's Buckingham Performing Arts Center, North Sprague Avenue, on Feb. 14-16.

Performances will begin at 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, and at 2 p.m. on Sunday. Tickets are $4 for adults and $3 for students and will be sold at the door.

With music and lyrics by Stephen Schwartz ("Pippin," "Godspell," "Pocahontas," "Prince of Egypt") and book by Joseph Stein ("Fiddler on the Roof"), the show has been described as "a lilting parable about the dangers of hasty love."

Based on the 1938 French film "La Femme de Boulanger" by Marcel Pagnol and Jean Giono, the story is set in the little French town of Concorde in Provence. A middle-aged baker and his young wife move to Concorde, which has been without a baker and bread for seven weeks. The baker's wife runs off with the mayor's handsome young handyman and the baker in his grief, stops baking bread. The townsfolk begin quarreling among themselves until they decide to join together and encourage the young wife to come back, enabling her husband to begin baking again.

Local students cast in 'Rough Crossing'

The King's College Players promise audiences smooth sailing on Feb. 12-15, when the cast performs playwright Tom Stoppard's "Rough Crossing," a comedy set aboard a luxury liner in the 1930s.

King's students take on the roles of a group of theater people — including a star, a composer, and a pair of writers — who are attempting to finish an upcoming Broadway show while sailing aboard an ocean liner. Their high profiles attract attention and create shipboard complications, and a very funny play ensues.

The cast includes: Rob Klubek, a junior from Wilkes-Barre playing Turai; Michael Miller, a freshman from Dallas, as Gal; senior Alex Haynes of Foster, R.I., cast as Adam; Regina Rockensies of Dallas, who is returning to the King's stage after completing graduate school, as Natasha; Al Vota, a junior from Floral Park, N.J., is Ivor; and Matt Hinton, a Harveys Lake sophomore, portraying Dvornichuk.

"Rough Crossing" will be presented in the Administration Building Auditorium, North River Street. The performances on all four nights begin at 7:30 p.m. Admission: general public, $6; senior citizens, $3. For reservations, call the box office at 208-5825.
