Three local students cast in 'Rough Crossing'

The King's College Players promise audiences smooth sailing on Feb. 12-15, when the cast performs playwright Tom Stoppard's "Rough Crossing," a comedy set aboard a luxury liner in the 1930s.

King's students take on the roles of a group of theater people — including a star, a composer, and a pair of writers — who are attempting to finish an upcoming Broadway show while sailing aboard an ocean liner. Their high profiles attract attention and create shipboard complications, and a very funny play ensues.

The cast includes: Rob Klubek, a junior from Wilkes-Barre playing Turai; Michael Miller, a freshman from Dallas, as Gal; senior Alex Haynes of Foster, R.I., cast as Adam; Regina Rockensies of Dallas, who is returning to the King's stage after completing graduate school, as Natasha; Al Vota, a junior from Floral Park, N.J., is Ivor; and Matt Hinton, a Harveys Lake sophomore, portraying Dvornichek.

"Rough Crossing" will be presented in the Administration Building Auditorium, North River Street. The performances on all four nights begin at 7:30 p.m. Admission: general public, $6; senior citizens, $3. For reservations, call the box office at 208-5825.
