

Scholarship offered for Audubon summer camp

The Greater Wyoming Valley Audubon Society is offering a scholarship for one boy or girl between the ages of 10 and 13 to the Audubon Youth Camp in Maine this coming summer. The competition is open to anyone in this age group.

The scholarship covers half the tuition. Participants must have an interest in natural things — birds, frogs, plants, insects etc. — and a concern about wildlife conservation.

The youth camp at Hog Island takes a group of 50 young people for a 10-day session in late July. The curriculum includes marine science, geology, forest ecology, ornithology and field and pond studies, all tailored to the 10-13 age group. Campers are led by science and environmental educators who have strong backgrounds working with elementary and middle school-age youth. Campers learn about themselves, nature and how to relate to the environment.

Selection of the winner will be made by a committee of the Greater Wyoming Valley Audubon Society. Information about the camp is available at www.maineaudubon.org.

An application form is available by calling Sam Merrill at 408-4837 or 696-3753, or at <http://clubs.homeearth.com/gwvas/>. The deadline to submit an application is Feb. 13.
