Sem students receive science research awards

Wyoming Seminary Science Research Group students recently earned awards for their research projects at regional and state competitions. The students presented oral reports of their research to panels of judges and other students.

At the recent Pennsylvania Junior Academy of Science (PJAS), Northeast Regional Meeting, held at King's College, three students received first place awards: junior Andrew O'Hara, Dallas; sophomore Lauren Hardisky, Shavertown; and sophomore Ross Feinstein, Shavertown. O'Hara also received a first place award at the State PJAS meeting held in May.

Four students also participated in the Pennsylvania Junior Science and Humanities Symposium at Pennsylvania State University, held in State College. O'Hara received first place in Life Sciences in the first round of competition, and received second place overall, receiving a scholarship and an opportunity to participate in the national competition.
