Alma E. Skopic, Edith M. Liqua and Harriette Eckroth, from left, have been accepted into the Society of Mayflower Descendants of Pennsylvania

Women accepted as Mayflower descendants

Three women from the Back Mountain, Alma E. Skopic, Edith M. Liqua and Harriette Eckroth, were recently approved, accepted and became members of the Society of Mayflower Descendants of Pennsylvania. They are associated with the Susquehanna Colony of Pennsylvania located in central Pennsylvania and recently received their certificates which made them official members in both the state and national society.

All three women are from and have lived in the Back Mountain area, but are now living in Bloomsburg.

Alma Skopic and Edith M. Liqua are sisters and the daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clyde and Virgie Kline

Sickler. Their heritage traces back to the Mayflower through the Edward Doty line for which they were approved and accepted into this society.

Harriette Eckroth, who is a cousin to Alma and Edith, is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John and Sylvia Newberry Jones. Her heritage traces back to the Mayflower through the George Soule line for which she was approved and accepted.

To become a member, an individual must be able to document their lineal descent (bloodline) from a passenger list of 26 Pilgrims, who made the voyage on the Mayflower, which terminated in New England, in December 1620.
