

Communications summer camp for high school students

High school juniors and seniors can explore their interest in the media communications industry at a new summer camp offered by College Misericordia. The Communications Summer Camp is designed to give students hands-on experience in various areas of the news media and broadcast industries.

The camp begins Monday, July 12 and continues through Friday, July 16. Daily sessions will be between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. and no overnight stay is involved. Upon completion of the camp, students will have produced a newspaper, a radio commercial, a television news program and their own radio program. Students will be given a copy of their newspaper, a CD copy of their radio commercial and program, and a DVD copy of their television production.

The camp is open to any high school student who will be a junior or senior in September 2004. Students, parents and guidance counselors are all welcome to inquire. Requests for enrollment must be made no later than Friday, July 2. Accepted applicants will be notified by mail. Enrollment is limited to 30, with students accepted on a first-come, first-served basis. For information, contact David Phoenix, media production manager, at 674-6214 or by e-mail at dphoenix@misericordia.edu.

The Communications Department at College Misericordia prepares students for careers in areas such as advertising, journalism (both print and electronic), radio, video and television production, public relations, and writing for print, electronic and new media. Students will also be prepared for graduate study in Communications. The program features all new, digital editing and production facilities, introduced in the fall of 2001. Student media include The Highlander newspaper and WCMR radio.

Dallas Rotary honors essay contest winners

The Rotary Club of Dallas recognized three 11th grade students from Lake-Lehman High School at a recent dinner held in their honor at the Castle Inn in Dallas. Matt Shiskowski took first place in the Rotary essay contest, and his essay will be forwarded to district level competition. Skye Nickalls won second place, and Susan Dobinick took third place, as her mom and dad, Jean and Dennis Dobinick, were on hand to applaud her accomplishment. There were 79 entries this year from Lake-Lehman students. The contestants read their essays and received their prizes. Co-chairpersons of the event were Diane Considine and Larry Hilbert.

Degree program in English for Penn State Wilkes-Barre

A new bachelor of arts degree in English will be available to students at Penn State Wilkes-Barre beginning this fall, announced Dr. Mary E. Hines, campus executive officer. This degree emphasizes the skills necessary in today's workforce for critical thinking, communication, and research, especially in the humanities, while retaining the traditional academic focus on reading, writing, literature, and language. Qualified students may participate in career internships and in the English honors program. The addition of the 4-year English degree brings to seven the number of baccalaureate degrees that can be completed at the campus in Lehman. Students also have the option of spending two years at the Wilkes-Barre campus, then completing their degree at another Penn State location, including University Park.

For more information on the new English degree program, or other programs, contact the Admissions office at 675-9238 or wbadmissions@psu.edu
