Joan Harris Dancers will perform at Harvest Festival

The award-winning Joan Harris Dancers dancers are scheduled to perform on Sunday, Sept. 19 at 1:30 p.m. at this year's Dallas Harvest Festival.

A featured soloist in the show will be Courtney Pruden of Dallas, who recently returned from New York City where she won a coveted spot in the Joffrey Ballet's summer intensive. She will be performing a selection from the classic ballet, Don Quixote, which was staged by the Joan Harris Centre in the spring.

This weekend's performance is designed to be as educational as it is entertaining with a focus on both the history and the development of the art of dance. It will combine original choreography with narrative pieces and promises to be a unique experience.
