

Virginia Reinert, Hannah Grube and Clara Grube presented a program to children at the Back Mountain Memorial Library.

Queen Elizabeth and her ladies host summer reading events

The theme of the 2005 Summer Reading Program at the Back Mountain Memorial Library is "Dragons, Dreams and Daring Deeds," with visits from Queen Elizabeth and her ladies of the court.

The girls, in costume, presented a program of song and poetry at last week's event, and will be present at the final party of the summer August 12 at 1 p.m. They will dispense certificates to those who have completed eight books during the summer. Refreshments will be served in Mrs. Rudolph's gazebo.

Virginia Reinert, 15 and a member of the Shakespeare Club "Bill's Crew" at Dallas High School, plays the role of court singer; Hannah Grube, 15, also a member of Bill's Crew, is truly the queen in gesture and speech; and Clara Grube, 10, a student at Wycallis Elementary School, is a lady-in-waiting. MEDIEVAL PROGRAMS ON TAP

The Barony of Endless Hills will visit the library on Saturday, July 23 from 1-2 p.m. and will explain many of the items used during Medieval times such as leather pouches, unspun wool, clothing, etc. They will have games and activities for the children. This program is part of the summer reading program, "Dragon, Dreams and Daring Deeds."

Another program is scheduled for Wednesday, July 27 at 1 p.m. It will be the "Royal Craft and Story Time." The children will make a hennin, a crown or a shield. Volunteers will provide face painting and a story will be read.

The Girl Scouts of Penns Woods Service Unit 119 held their annual day camp program last week at Frances Slocum State Park. More than 100 campers enjoyed the program entitled "Around the World in Five Days," as they learned about different countries through crafts, food and live entertainment.

"On Monday we did Japan and the girls ate sushi," said Michelle Tomaselli, in reference to the flattened white bread, rolled with cream cheese, carrot sticks and cucumber, and then sliced into pin-wheels. Another day the campers learned how to make scones on the grill and the camp finale was a Mexican fiesta with tacos, salsa, and watermelon.

"We had a bagpiper for Irish day and the Voices of Africa were here for another day," said Tomaselli, who was the camp's co-director along with Kim Smith.

"The Voices of Africa" are a musical group from Philadelphia who taught the girls some authentic rhythmic beats from Ghana. "That was a lot of fun," Tomaselli said.

The camp would not be possible without the help of many volunteers. "The counselors are just amazing and the moms who help out under the pavilion all week are terrific," Tomaselli said. In addition to the special themed activities, campers also enjoyed a swim day, hiking and a scavenger hunt in the park. be done before that date, including landscaping, setting the foundation and constructing a concrete base.

"We're going to have a refreshment tent and jobs for craftsmen and older members of the community," said Hilbert. "We're getting help from everyone. We have volunteers from the borough's road department and the mayor (Tim Carroll). There will be something for everyone to do."

The Rotary Club is accepting donations for the project and donors will receive a commemorative die-cast replica of the clock. The first sponsors, Ed and Pauline Roth, donated $5,000 to the project. The clock

YOU CAN HELP

Two-thirds of the $50,000 needed to purchase and construct the clock at center of Dallas has been collected. Further donations can be made through Roth's Jewelers, Dallas Photo, Fino's Pharmacy, Hilbert's The Tractor Store, Steven's Town and Country Cleaners or the UPS Store.

will be dedicated during the borough's Harvest Festival on Sept. 18.

Hilbert, owner of Hilbert's The Tractor Store, has also been a key contributor. The longtime businessman has donated his time and money to the project, which will help commemorate the borough's 125th anniversary.

"I've been a businessman in the Back Mountain for 28 years and the community has served me well," he said. "This is a way I can give back to the community. It's something I want to do."
