50¢

SERVING THE COMMUNITIES OF THE DALLAS AND LAKE-LEHMAN SCHOOL DISTRICTS

The display of white ribbons communicates public support for the Cleary family

Back Mountain community mourns great loss

By DAVE KONOPKI Post Editor

DALLAS - We're grieving. most of us to imagine the magnitude of the suffering his family is enduring, members of the Back Mountain community are nagh. mourning the recent death of First Lt. Michael Cleary.

graduate was killed Dec. 20 during an ambush by insurgent their unit after successfully de- extended to the Cleary family. in a bomb factory when a road- have been changed and replaced convov.

The intelligent, popular, athletic 24-year-old was 10 days away from ending his tour of duty in Although it's impossible for Iraq and returning to the United States. Cleary was also two months away from marrying his longtime sweetheart Erin Kava-

A four-hour viewing was held The 1999 Dallas High School on the campus of College Miser-

An outpouring of sympathy forces near Samarra, Iraq. Cleary from community members, civic and his men were returning to leaders and businesses has been the nation. Neighbors have ofstroying a large cache of weapons Business signs along Route 309 side bomb exploded near their with messages that honor Cleary. See LOSS, Page 8

And white ribbons - a sign of support to the Cleary family - have been placed on telephone poles, on lightpoles, and on front doors throughout the Back Mountain.

The support hasn't gone unnoticed, said Cleary's father Jack.

"God bless this community," he said. "There are so many wonderful people. Mike is a product Thursday at the Anderson Center of this community. He's a product of all of us."

The support has taken many forms, said Cleary. Phone calls have been pouring in from across fered their houses to accommodate many visitors to the Cleary

TIMES LEADER STAFF PHOTO/DON CAREY

Members of the Cleary family support eachother as the body of Michael arrives at Snowdon Funeral Home Tuesday after-

A new church rector found

The Rev. M. Peter Harer will give his first sermon at the Prince of Peace Episcopal Church Sunday, Jan. 8

> BY GENELLE HOBAN Post Correspondent

aving only a single church to tend to will be a nice change of pace for the Rev. M. Peter Harer, the new rector at the Prince of Peace Episcopal Church in Dal-

Harer who will start his services Sunday, Jan. 8, has been taking care of two churches, one in Palmerton and the other in Lehighton, for close to nine years at the Episcopal Minis-

"They are only seven miles apart," he said. was a lot of juggling to do."

Previous to his posts in Palmerton and Lehighton, Harer was a practicing attorney in Harrisburg.

"I got a degree from Dickinson Law School in Carlisle in 1992," the 55 year old said.

Harer, a native of Jersey Shore, Pa., said he has been to the Wilkes-Barre region many times, but was unfamiliar with the Dallas ar-

"We wanted to be in a smaller town, and somewhere that was closer in proximity to our cabin," he said. "My wife and I have our retirement home in Jersey Shore. We call it our cabin, but it's bigger than that. It's in the country and is built on the farm that I grew up on."

Dave Dillon, chairman of the search committee, said the church began the hunt for a new rector in March.

with the Rev. Harer

was that he had a real

nice quality that seemed to fit with

our parish," Dillon,

of Trucksville, said.

"The biggest thing

MORE INFO

To read some of the Rev. M. Peter Harer's past sermons log on to http://www.episminu.org/sermons_on_line.htm.

"He had good ideas. He is going to bring a w approach to things. He has a sense of strong quiet leadership."

Harer and his wife have three grown children and a son, Samuel who will celebrate his

17th birthday soon. "My son is very positive about the move,"

Harer said. "He likes to play soccer and he heard that Dallas has a good soccer team."

Harer will replace Vivian Bennett, the former priest in charge, who parishioners said was more than an interim priest but less than a rector for more than three years.

"We were just very impressed with the friendliness of the people," Harer said. "We felt there was a lot of enthusiasm in the parish. We felt that it was a good match."

Harer, ordained a priest in 1981, will celebrate his 25th anniversary this year.

"I had a desire to help people and to serve the lord," the father of four and grandfather of seven said. "It's kind of a personal thing. I wasn't hit with lightning or anything. I just had sense of calling for my vocation."

The new rector and his family will temporarily reside at a parishioner's cottage in Harveys Lake until March because the rectory is

"We kind of feel like gypsies," Harer said. "We hope to be moving into the cottage next currently being rented out. week, but things are still kind of up in the air with the movers and everything."

Harer, an avid lover of cooking, said he will give his first sermon on the Epiphany, the day celebrated as the occasion when three wisemen came to the manger in Bethlehem.

The Prince of Peace Episcopal Church in

Dallas will welcome

Sunday, Jan. 8. Harer,

former parish commu-

55, is pictured at a farewell party at his nity in Palmerton.

its new rector, M. Peter Harer, a native of Jersey Shore, Pa.

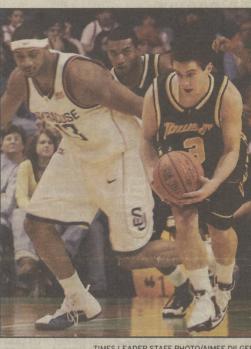

"Together with the Prince of Peace parish I hope we can grow together and expand our ministries," Harer said. "I hope to help people find a spiritual home in the Prince of Peace Church."

Harer and his family along with their yellow Labrador retriever, Ollie, love to go camping in the summer in their pop-up

In 2002 while on a three month sabbatical Harer and his family ventured their way to California and back.

"Now that I only have one church I hope that I can be more involved in community affairs," he said.

> Pictured is the Prince of Peace Episcopal Church in Dallas where the Rev. M. Peter Harer is the new rector. Harer, ordained a priest in 1981, will celebrate his 25th anniversary this year.

Tim Crossin intercepts a pass by Syracuse's #13 Darryl Watkins.

TIMES LEADER STAFF PHOTO/AIMEE DILGER

Kennedy sees bright future for Tim Crossin

As a freshman at Towson University Crossin's started all nine games this season

> By DAVE KONOPKI Post Editor

WILKES-BARRE TWP. Standing in the hallway outside the visitors' locker room at Wachovia Arena, Pat Kennedy looked more like Tim Crossin's big brother than his head coach.

With a hand resting on the shoulder of his freshman point playing a game in his backyard. guard, the Towson University coach flashed a broad smile. Kennedy knows the shoulders of the Trucksville resident are go- of your hometown and getting ing to carry much of the load for cheered like that is a great feelthe Tigers during the next four ing. It's something most people

"Tim is working very hard to time." get better," said Kennedy during suffered an 82-56 loss against Syracuse University. "He's learning. On this level, you have to get better every year. Tim is going to have a great career at Towson."

Crossin was the first to admit he didn't play his best game against the Orange in the first Division I college basketball game played at the arena. The former Bishop O'Reilly standout fin- the legion of supporters who ished the game with six points, wear his No. 3 jersey and chant three rebounds and three assists.

Crossin says an opportunity to play in front of a sellout crowd of No. 3 five years ago because of his 8,209 fans - coupled with the fact respect for McNamara - the forthat he was facing his boyhood mer Hannan star admits he has a basketball idol Gerry McNamara different kind of fan. - created more than a few butter-

Class 2A championship. "I'm always a little nervous before games, but nothing like See CROSSIN, Page 8

that," said Crossin, who has started in all nine games for Towson this season. "The last time I was that nervous was the last time I played against Gerry. There was a big crowd and this is my home-

While Kennedy offered encouraging words to Crossin as he greeted basketball fans from the Wyoming Valley after the game, McNamara was bombarded by a horde of local media. The Syracuse senior politely answered question after question about

"It was a special night and I'm sure Tim feels the same way," he said. "Being able to play in front never experience in their life-

McNamara has become wildly a press conference after Towson popular during his four years at Syracuse. It began during his incredible freshman season, when he helped lead the Orange to the national championship. His status has continued to grow, with busloads of Scranton residents making the two-hour trip several times a year to watch him play at the Carrier Dome in Syracuse.

McNamara has gotten used to his name during the game. But in Crossin - who started wearing

"I've heard and read things Tim flies in his stomach. Crossin and has said about me during the McNamara squared off four years years, and that was something ago when Bishop O'Reilly played new for me," said McNamara, Bishop Hannan for the District 2 who scored 20 points against Towson. "It's great having all of

