

Park will host sun safety event

Cancer education specialists from the Northeast Regional Cancer Institute and the Pennsylvania Department of Health will conduct a program about skin cancer from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 8 at the Frances Slocum State Park swimming pool. The program is part of the Sun Safety in Northeastern Pennsylvania program.

Sun Safety is designed to raise awareness of skin cancer prevention, early detection and diagnosis issues throughout six counties in Northeastern Pennsylvania. Recognizing that the majority of lifetime sun exposure occurs before age 18, and that sun exposure and sunburns early in life increase the risk of skin cancer, the Sun Safety initiative focuses on education for parents and children.

The cancer education specialists will provide information about the prevention and early detection of skin cancer. Children who participate in interactive projects will receive samples of sunscreen, distributed in colorful children's beach pails. Other giveaways and educational brochures will also be available for adults participating in the Sun Savvy Quiz.
