

'Get a Clue' about child fingerprints

Have your child fingerprinted at the Back Mountain Memorial Library

Your child grows and so does his or her fingerprints! So "Get a Clue" about fingerprinting at the next special summer reading program at the Back Mountain Memorial Library.

Officer Dave Wehrer of the Back Mountain Police Association will be on hand to fingerprint your child for the first time or update your child's fingerprints that were taken years ago. The program is scheduled for 1 p.m. on Monday, July 23, in the Children's Room of the library.

According to the National Child Identification Program sponsored by the FBI and the American Football Coaches Association, fingerprints are composed of a unique combination of ridges that make patterns of loops, deltas and arches, as well as ending ridges, broken ridges, island ridges, forks, dots, bridges, spurs, eyes, bifurcations and other distinguishing marks.

With each passing year, your child's fingers grow in size, making these characteristic points more pronounced and easier to read. And although the relative position of ridges (with their loops, deltas and arches) remain the same, they may have been disfigured by scars or burns. So it is important to update the fingerprints periodically.

Please join us at the library for this special program. Call the library at 675-1182 for more information or to register.

Back Mountain Farmer's Market a local favorite

The Back Mountain Farmers' Market will be open every Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. through September 15 on the grounds of the Back Mountain Memorial Library, Huntsville Road, Dallas.

Local favorites returning to the Back Mountain Farmers' Market this year are Golomb's Farm and Greenhouse, Dymond's Farm and Farm Markets, Brace's Orchard and Bakery, iGourmet.com, Creekside Farm and Nursery and Emma's Bakery. Patrons to the market will find the summer's best in locally grown seasonal fruits and vegetables, homemade baked goods, gourmet international cheeses and more.

Vendors' stalls will set up on the pavement of the library parking lot. Patrons are asked to please park on the lawn behind the library (no neighborhood street parking).

If you would like to participate in the Back Mountain Farmers' Market, stop in at the library's reception desk or call 675-1182 and leave your name and phone number. We'll be happy to give you a call.
