Grosek honored for generosity to MU

Misericordia University honored Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Grosek, Jr., of Dallas, by naming them the recipients of the 2007 Trustee Associates Award during the annual Trustee Associates Awards Dinner on Saturday, Oct. 13, at the Mohegan Sun at Pocono Downs, Plains Township.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Grosek, Jr., of Dallas, are recipients of the Misericordia University 2007 Trustee Associates Award.

Mr. Grosek is a regional business and civic leader who has combined his professional acumen and enthusiasm for education into service to his community and Misericordia University.

"Tony Grosek has been a tireless worker and dedicated board member," said Michael A. MacDowell, president of Misericordia University. "He has helped Misericordia make the right decisions in good times and bad. His advice is always solid and helpful."

"Tony and Helen are two of the most dedicated people with which any university could hope to be associated," he added.

Mr. Grosek and his wife, Helen, are the epitome of Misericordia. They are loyal, ardent supporters of the institution, giving generously of their time, talent and financial resources to benefit students and Northeastern Pennsylvania. Mr. Grosek has provided invaluable leadership and sound advice as a Trustee and Trustee Emeritus since he was appointed to the Board in 1990.

The couple understands the challenges of higher education. They generously support the annual Under the Stars Summer Arts Festival that brings Shakespearean plays, live jazz music and contemporary musical performances to campus every summer and the Annual Fund which provides unrestricted operating support to enrich curriculum and allows worthy students to receive financial aid and scholarships.

"I think our area needs something like this," Mr. Grosek said about Misericordia imbuing a sense of service to others in its students. "And that is one of the main reasons why I stuck around to make sure that we can give everything to our kids and, hopefully, others. We are certainly moving in the right direction."

The couple's philanthropy has also extended to three important capital campaigns that have enabled Misericordia to meet the challenges of the 21st century.

An architectural engineer and businessman, Mr. Grosek lent his considerable professional expertise to several important construction projects on campus. His tenure on the board has been punctuated by the institution's growing academic reputation, record enrollment and achieving university status.

"This great community and the young kids deserve to have something like Misericordia," Mr. Grosek believes. "I am grateful being on the board to do it. I'm proud of all the things we are doing; the way we are building this up to be a great place."

Mr. Grosek's civic duty began during his tour of duty with the United States Army and also extends to Wyoming Seminary College Preparatory School in Kingston where he has been a member of the board since 1973 and has served as vice chairman of the Board. He is also a former member of the Wilkes-Barre

Chamber of Commerce and Westmoreland Club.

As an entrepreneur, Mr. Grosek's business holdings are numerous and diverse. He is president of The Ramada Plaza Hotel in Wilkes-Barre, Eaton Realty, Inc. and the development company, Management Alliance, Inc., in Wilkes-Barre. He is also the owner of the construction firm, A.J. Grosek and Associates in Wilkes-Barre and is the former president of Grosek & Sons, Inc. in Plains Township, a former family lumber company, and Ten East South Street, a high-rise apartment building in Wilkes-Barre that his company built, managed and owned.

His talent and business interests are also responsible for constructing numerous landmark buildings in the region. Mr. Grosek is responsible for Provincial Towers in Wilkes-Barre, the first terminal at the Wilkes-Barre/Scranton International Airport in Avoca, Pittston Area High School and buildings for Mercy and Nesbitt hospitals in Wilkes-Barre and Kingston.

Mr. Grosek has a Bachelor of Science degree in architectural engineering from Penn State University. He and his wife, Helen, have five children, Andrea, Ellen, Anthony III, Robert and David and 13 grandchildren.
