Elvis is still 'in the building' at Camera Pro studio

Ladies and gentlemen...Elvis has left the building.

Recently, I walked into the Camera Pro studio in Luzerne and, in awe of the music memorabilia in the place, gravitated directly toward owner John Levandoski's collection of old Beatles ticket stubs and autographed photos.

"That's not all," John said as he led me into a room full of original, 60s dated sheet music, vinyls, magazines and news articles.

Among all this incredible, historical information, came some of the most fascinating, REAL stories I've ever heard - one of which revolves around the King of

CORPORATE QUIPS

CHRISTIE DELICATI

Rock & Roll!

"My wife and her family found a box of really old photos in the basement of their house," John told me. "No one had any interest because they didn't recognize the people in them. I grabbed a few random pictures and that was the end of it. Later that night, I was checking out the pics through a magnifying glass. Guess who was in one of them?" he smirked.

"Who?" I asked.

"ELVIS!" he shouted.

"I must see it," I said, anxiously.

There he was. Elvis - wearing ordinary street clothes as he appeared to be playing a local gig in some auditorium. Along side Elvis was a fellow bandmate standing next to a personalized piece of equipment. The name "Dvorin" was labeled on the piece which peaked John's curiosity. "I looked up the name to find out who it was," he told me.

Would you believe it if I told you? Al Dvorin, who passed away in 2004, was the guy who coined that infamous and legendary phrase we still hear today - Ladies and gentlemen, Elvis has left the building.
