Farmers back at library

Locally-grown seasonal fruits and vegetables, homemade baked goods, gourmet international cheeses and much more can be found at the Back Mountain Farmers Market which opened July 19 on the grounds of the Back Mountain Memorial Library, Huntsville Road, Dallas. The market will be open from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. every Saturday through September 27.

Brielle Brace and Megan Mancinelli helped sell peaches at the farmers market.

Local favorites returning this year are Golomb's Farm and Greenhouse, Dymond's Farm and Farm Markets, Brace's Orchard and Bakery, igourmet.com, Creekside Farm and Nursery and Emma's Bakery.

New additions to the market this year are the "Soup Chic" offering homemade soups, salads and sandwiches and Penn State's Master Gardener's Program scheduled to share gardening and local agricultural expertise on August 16 and September 13.

To help "keep it green" in the Back Mountain, 100% cotton canvas "Back Mountain Farmer's Market" shopping bags are available for purchase at the library reception desk for $3 each. Bags are also available at the market.

Vendor stalls will be set up on the pavement of the library parking lot. Market patrons are asked to park on the lawn behind the library as no neighborhood street parking is allowed.
