The History Channel

• On Sept. 3, 1777, the American flag is flown in battle for the first time, during a Revolutionary War skirmish at Cooch's Bridge in Maryland. On June 14, the Continental Congress had resolved that the flag would be 13 red and white stripes with 13 stars on a field of blue.

• On Sept. 7, 1940, 300 German bombers raid London and drop 337 tons of bombs in the first of 57 consecutive nights of bombing. One of Hitler's key blunders of the war was to underestimate the will and courage of the British people.

• On Sept. 4, 1957, Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus enlists the National Guard to prevent nine black students from entering Central High School in Little Rock. The conflict set the stage for the first major test of the 1954 Brown v. Board of Education decision banning segregation.

• On Sept. 2, 1969, America's first automatic teller machine makes its public debut, dispensing cash to customers at Chemical Bank in Rockville Center, N.Y. In 1971, an ATM that could handle multiple functions was introduced.

• On Sept. 5, 1972, at the Summer Olympics in Munich, Germany, a group of Palestinian terrorists known as Black September storms the Olympic Village apartment of the Israeli athletes, killing two and taking nine others hostage. In an ensuing shootout at the Munich airport, the nine hostages were killed along with five terrorists and one West German policeman.

Last Saturday night at Harvey's Lake, a dance was held in Hanson's Ballroom upstairs from the family's restaurant. The ballroom was filled to capacity with both young and old people looking for a chance to relax and kick their feet up to music from the 1950's and 60's; and experience the atmosphere of an era from the past.

Nostalgia was in the air. Some in attendance may have been remembering past dance at Hanson's Ballroom when big name acts like Chubby Checker and Franki Valli and the Four Seasons graced the stage.
