

Marie DeAngelo, of Sweet Valley, checks out a chicken during the judging process at the Luzerne County Fair. The judge is Robert Powell, of Carbondale.

Luzerne County Fair judge Robert Powell holds up a prize-winning chicken and its eggs with owner Barbara Rupert, of Hunlock Creek.

CHARLOTTE BARTIZEK/ FOR THE DALLAS POST

Mason and Sarah Rios, of Harveys Lake, and Kayla Meier and Kody and Mark Pachamovitch, of Sweet Valley, head toward the amusement rides at the fair.

Ending summer 'fair'ly

The 46th annual Luzerne County Fair has come to an end and, according to all accounts, was a huge success.

A viable source of income for clubs that provide community services throughout the year, the fair strives to be an affordable, yet memorable, event.

There was food to eat, entertainment to enjoy, rides to ride, crafts and products to purchase and animals to marvel at.

All in all, the fair surely provided a fun time - for the whole herd!

For more photos, visit www.mydallaspost.com.

Gail and Joe Telesco, of Dallas, appreciate the agricultural displays.

Donna Grey, of Shavertown, a volunteer at the Luzerne County Fair, pins ribbons and awards onto drawings that were entered at the fair.

Aaron Patton, left, and Katie Rogers, Dallas, ride the elephants.

Courtney Fox, of Red Rock, and Janice Richardson, of Shickshinny, encourage "Pal" before the opening ceremonies at the Luzerne County Fair.

The Moore family, of Larksville, visits the animal exhibits at the fair. From left, are Lara, James, Joshua, Jim and Casey.