Wycallis students present their very own circus program

The annual Irem Temple Shrine Circus has nothing on the third-graders from Wycallis Elementary School who recently presented a circus program at their school.

Andrew Francis, a circus clown, had as much fun as his audience.

Kayla Bdding was a charming flutist during a performance at the circus.

Caitlyn Pike and Rachel Rollman played their tiger roles perfectly.

Third grade teacher Paula Crispell was part of the show.

I learned early on in life that a structurally sound body just worked better. In fact, I know from personal experience that when my body is working as it was designed, I am maximally functional and optimally healthy. You see, I grew up with the benefit of regular chiropractic care. As a kid, growing up in Susquehanna County, I played frequently with my friends doing all the things that young boys love; running, climbing trees, and sports. I had the privilege of regular care from one of my good friend's father, Dr. Lynn Bayly. Intuitively, I knew what an advantage I had as a result. Chiropractic care was a natural part of growing up.

I always knew I wanted to help people. In college, I began to search for my life's work. As part of exploring my options, I spent time in Dr. Bayly's office. I witnessed incredible transformations in people. Those suffering from severe back, neck or other spinal pain, sciatica, headaches of all kinds, as well as those that just didn't function well at work or in sports. I met people from all walks of life, from young children to senior citizens, and watched them improve, and then begin to heal. It was an incredible experience. I had found my passion. I knew I wanted to bring this incredible opportunity for natural health care to others. My path became crystal clear.

I graduated from New York Chiropractic College in 2007 and I completed my post-graduate studies and internship with Dr. Bob Berry in Montour Falls, NY where I learned the latest information available to help patients with spinal and postural problems. As of November, I will be only the 13th doctor in Pennsylvania that has completed this advanced training in spinal biomechanics thanks to the mentoring from Dr. Berry and a series of advanced classes. The science behind this advanced work provides a tremendous advantage. With the latest technology, SpineWorks is able to offer state of the art care for back problems, disc conditions, neck pain, and all sorts of injuries to the neck and shoulders.

My wife Christi and I have elected to make Dallas our home. We are thrilled to be part of the community we love, and to bring the finest chiropractic care available to the people of the Back Mountain region.
