Seminary students to present 'Arcadia'

Performance set for Friday and Saturday, May 1 and 2, in Buckingham Arts Center

The Wyoming Seminary Players will present "Arcadia" at 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, May 1 and 2, in the Buckingham Performing Arts Center on North Sprague Avenue, Kingston.

The performance is open to the public, however, due to the mature nature of some of the play's themes, is not appropriate for younger audiences. Tickets are $3 in advance and $4 at the door.

The story takes place in a single room of Sidley Park, an English country manor, but spans two time periods: 1809-1812 and the present day.

In 1809, Thomasina, a teenage girl and mathematical prodigy, is developing advanced mathematical ideas while studying science with her tutor. Her home is filled with friends of her parents and many of the adults are engaged in shifting romantic relationships.

Fast forward to the present: one of Thomasina's descendants, along with a best-selling author and a university lecturer, attempt to discover more about Thomasina's ideas and to learn the truth of what really happened during those three years in the 1800s.

Seen in rehearsal for the May 1-2 production of 'Arcadia' at Wyoming Seminary are, from left, seated, Iris Ouellette, Pittston, as Thomasina; and Sean Dickinson, Shavertown, as Valentine. Standing, Kyle Segarra, Matamoras, as Septimus; Banner White, Bethlehem, as Bernard; Allison Considine, Dallas, as Hannah; and Katie Nealon, Kingston, as Chloe.

As the play's action shifts from one time period to the other, the set stays the same; only the actors' clothing and the items on a large, centrally-placed table change.

The main message of the play is that ultimately, people really don't change over time.

For more information, call 270-2190.
