Lower your Utility Bills and Qualify for up to a $1500 Tax Credit

The recent announcement by PPL to increase electric rates could not have come at a worse time for consumers. Food prices have been on the rise this year and energy prices will not be going down anytime soon. Even though rate increases are beyond our control, there are some things homeowners can do to take control of these rising utility rates.

"Electricity runs your air conditioner and your heating system if you have an electric furnace or heat pump," said Tom Pavlowski of USA Insulation.

"Even though we're at the mercy of the electric and gas companies, there is still a way to beat this increase."

USA's premium foam insulation will give your home year round comfort and savings. Pavlowski explained that insulating your home is the best investment homeowners can make this year. "If you can make one home improvement right now, consider the fact that insulation will ultimately pay for that rate increase and then some." Smart consumers who insulate now will reap the benefits of increased utility savings; not just electricity, but natural gas as well.

To soften the blow of higher electric rates, USA Insulation is holding its spring prices on all homes insulated through the month of June. "It's the least we can do for our customers in these tough economic times," added Pavlowski. With insulation your air conditioner will run less in the summer, and the furnace won't have to work as hard in the winter.

On Tuesday, February 17, 2009, President Obama signed into law an economic stimulus bill entitled The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act. The Bill provides homeowners with a tax credit equal to thirty percent (30%) of the cost in an amount not to exceed $1500 for energy efficient home improvements. "Homeowners need to understand that there is a limited amount of money allocated to this bill. Once the money is gone, it's gone," says Pavlowski.

USA Insulation installs a unique Premium foam insulation that goes into your wall cavity as a foam and hardens into a hard 4-inch shell between the walls. Its R-value of R-20 has the highest rating in the industry. R-value is a measure of the resistance of air movement between the walls. In addition to the approximate 40% savings on heating and electric bills, homeowners will enjoy other added benefits of insulation. It reduces outside noise by approximately 50 decibels, making your home seem a lot quieter, especially if you live in a high-traffic area. The product is fire-resistant, making it virtually impossible for fire to penetrate the walls. It is also non-toxic; a plus if you have children and pets. If you decide to sell your home, insulation is not only a great selling point, but will increase your home's value. If your home was built before 1980 it probably has little or no insulation. USA Insulation can install its insulation in most homes in one day, so homeowners are not inconvenienced, and can start saving on their utility bills right away. The company has installed insulation in thousands of satisfied customers homes throughout Pennsylvania and Ohio for 30 years.

USA Insulation specializes in brick and stucco homes. Insulation can also be applied to homes with siding.

Visit usainsulation.net for a video demonstration to see how the product is applied between the walls. Call 570-961-7500 to schedule an appointment and start saving on your utility bills right away.
