

Carving pumpkins in Jackson Twp.

The annual Jackson Township Pumpkin Carving Event attracted residents of all ages as pumpkin carving, costumes and tractor rides were all on the menu.

The Oley and Roskos families, including Matthew and Emma, stopped for some ice cream during the Jackson Township Pumpkin Carving Event.

CHARLOTTE BARTIZEK PHOTOS/ FOR THE DALLAS POST

At first glance, it looks as if Max Paczewski's eyes are bigger than his stomach. Paczewski thought up and carved this burger for the Fifth Annual Pumpkin Carving and Coloring Contest at Jackson Township.

All sizes and shapes come out for Dallas Kiwanis Parade

Participants of all sizes and shapes gathered on Church Street in Dallas for the Annual Dallas Kiwanis Halloween Parade and marched to the Dallas Fire Company building where the Back Mountain Business Association and other community sponsors provided refreshments.

Artem and Anna Smagin, of Trucksville, enjoy the antics around them during the costume contest. The costumes were made by their mother, Natalie.

Gabrielle Ryman looks suspiciously at Logan Davis inside a pumpkin head suit.

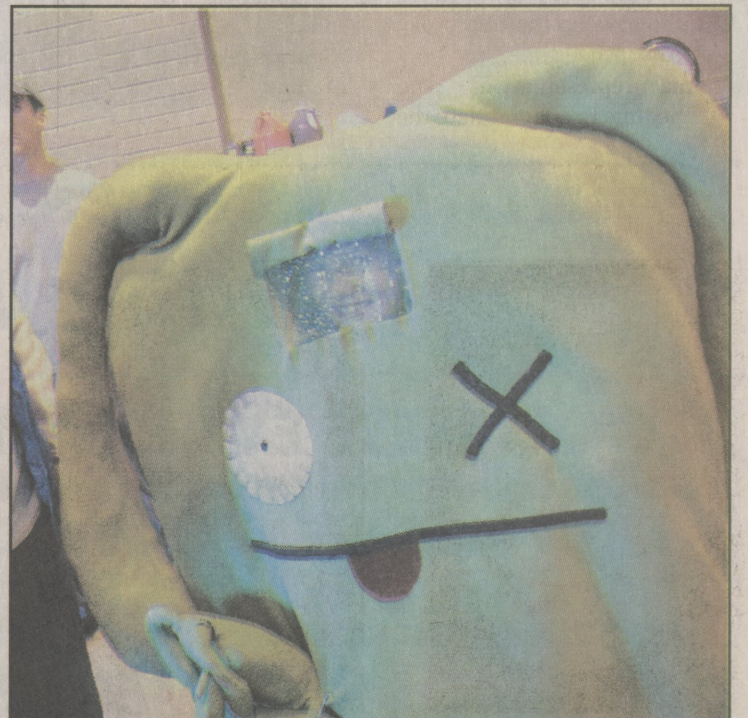

Mason Kivler, of Dallas, thought his hat would look better on his father, Micah.

ridget Goodrich, of Dallas, had the best eyelashes during the annual Dallas Kiwanis Halloween Parade.

With a shortened route this year, the Dallas Kiwanis Halloween Parade was led down Church Street one block to the Dallas Firehouse where refreshments were provided by the Back Mountain Business Association and other community sponsors.

Jade Fry, of Harveys Lake, smiles beneath her homemade costume.

PHOTOS BY CHARLOTTE BARTIZEK/ FOR THE DALLAS POST