planting flowers or maintaining the grounds.

To Morgan, the cottage restoration has become a labor of love as well as a walk down memory lane. He recalls hanging out at the cottage with Elise P. Conyngham McHale, now of Doylestown, and continues to maintain a close friendship with her.

The cottage, complete with much of the original furniture, includes a dining room table to accommodate 40 guests, old Victorian style sofas and chairs, the original horse hair mattresses and delicately-carved bedroom furniture.

Many of the bedrooms still display the original doilies with the initials of members of the Conyngham family. In one bedroom, William Lord Conyngham's riding hat from 1878 casually hangs on a wooden coat rack. Next to the back door, a large vase with a collection of walking sticks and canes sits ready for use.

By visiting the cottage, guests stroll in the footsteps of one of the board that water drainage coming from a pipe at the Lehman-Jackson Elementary School is eroding his property.

Karasinski said he has previously been at a board meeting about the matter and said he cannot fix his property until the district fixes the problem on its end.

He provided the board with an estimate for $3,797 to fix the problem on the district's end.

Rossi will give the information to the district's director of building and grounds.

Wrestling program note

Rossi noted to a reporter after the meeting that the junior high wrestling coaches and new head wrestling Coach Thomas Williams are "working things out."

A parent told the board earlier this month that none of the junior high coaches had yet been contacted by Williams, who was hired in April as the head high school wrestling coach despite protest from parents and coaches.

a second time at the next board meeting scheduled for 7 p.m. on Monday, June 28 in the junior/senior high school auditorium. It must be approved by June 30.

Resignation approved

The board approved the resignation of Jon Pollard, an assistant principal at the junior/senior high school, effective June 30.

Pollard was hired on May 25 as principal of John F. Kennedy and Tenth Street elementary schools in the Wyoming Area School District.
