

BILL TARUTIS/ FOR THE DALLAS POST

Theresa Heintz of Dallas won honorable mention in the Broadcast Education Association competition for her video 'Life After Death,' a documentary that recapped her family's struggle to deal with her father's death in 2003.

AWARD

Continued from Page 1

home on weekends to interview her sisters and mother in one-onone settings.

broke down at one point.

"It's always a hard subject ... I was very sort of closed, I guess you could say, because it's hard to convey such emotions in front of the camera like that," she said.

Theresa also focused on the continuously changing emotions her family members have felt from that fateful day and the cluding recounting the strength perience," she said. "I was behind her mother had to muster in or- the camera and they were just der to continue as a single parent opening up. My older sister and in mourning.

make me think about how I really ficult because I wanted to go over do feel about his death because and give them a hug ... but I was after watching ... my mom on also trying to capture the mocamera I didn't realize how much ment." Katrina said she was still leery pain she was hiding from us, beopening up on camera, even cause after he passed away we all though her mother and sister talked about it and we all said our feelings but being the mother it was kind of hard for her to be like, together and the documentary 'Well, I'm sad, too," said Katrina. will give them something posi-

> Theresa said the closeness of tive to reflect upon in the future. her family has grown throughout the experience, and she believed talking about it and so happy that reliving the story so many years this was maybe something we later gave the family a new way to can look back on in a couple look at that difficult time.

my mom broke down in front of "If anything, I guess it just the camera, and it was kind of dif-

Though it was a difficult experience for her family to relive, Theresa believes they are all better for going through the ordeal

"They were all just so open to years, like 20 years from now, and "It was actually a really eye- be like, 'This is beautiful how we years after her father's death, in- opening and kind of amazing ex- captured this moment," she said.

AIMEE DILGER PHOTOS/ THE DALLAS POST

Men in high heels set out to walk a mile for the fundraiser Walk A Mile In Her Shoes at Misericordia University last week.

Continued from Page 1

wearing the shoes to empathize with women."

Lee Ann de Reus of the foundation spoke to the group after the mile walk around campus.

The Panzi Foundation supports the Panzi Hospital, which provides care to all people living in the eastern part of the Democratic Republic of Congo. A special wing of the hospital is dedicated to treating women who are victims of political violence and their children, including providvices in addition to health care, Mile in Her Shoes" fundraiser. said Caleb.

ing counseling and daycare ser- Men wait to trek a mile in heels to raise money for a "Walk a sold dozens of pierogies from the Shadyrill Bakery and Café in Lehman over the past few months to raise money for the production.

Continued from Page 1

CABARET

Tyler Pearson, 17, of Harveys Lake, said she and others performed musical numbers from "Cinderella" in the cabaret show as a way to give audiences a sneak peek of the musical.

"It's good exposure and advertising for us, and it gives others a chance to see what we're all about if they're interested in mu-" said Pearson, who will play me role of "Cinderella" next weekend.

Last year all three of the thea-Wizard of Oz" sold out, and Major Ackerman is hoping for similar success this year. About 500 um, and if need be, a fourth show will be added on Sunday evening to accommodate the audience.

ees to know that this is not Disney's "Cinderella." She said it was a struggle to teach her students, many of whom grew up with the 1950 Disney classic, about the realness of the play.

"It's a story that dates back to Egypt and China thousands of years ago," she said. "I try to pick things that have historical, cultural values."

Major Ackerman used other versions of the tale, including those performed by Julie Andrews in 1957 and Leslie Ann Warren in 1965, to explain the difference.

"The godmother is not a fairy," she said. "She's actually Cinderella's godmother. She comes to help out - she has some magical 'adult powers."

The musical will also feature out 20 children from the discrict's three elementary schools. The set spans the height of the stage and includes a castle setting as well as a luxurious dressing room setting.

Parents of the theater students have been a big help in creating the magic of the musical, including designing, painting and assembling the set, sewing costumes and coaching the vocalists. Karen Steltz, who performin several plays seats are available in the auditorihigh school, manned the ticket table during the cabaret.

CHARLOTTE BARTIZEK/ FOR THE DALLAS POST

ter group's performances of "The Jenna Mortenson sings during a benefit cabaret evening for the Lake-Lehman High School Theatre Troupe.

"We are supporting the second generation of theater students," Major Ackerman wants attend- said Steltz, whose son Ben will play the Prince.

donations from businesses for a raffle drawing to be conducted on the last night of the play. So far, the parents have received nate gift certificates or coupons we're there."

Lake-Lehman when she was in to be a part of the drawing.

Even students who participated in the cabaret show recognize the importance of supporting the arts.

Jake Sedorchuk, 18, of Hunlock Creek, and Cameron War-The group is also looking for ner, 16, of Sweet Valley, played two songs with their acoustic band, "Wood" as part of the talent show.

"We always want to help out," goods for a few baskets, but more said Warner. "Any time we get to are needed. Businesses can do- play music for a good cause,

Dr. Hage receives scholarship

icordia University, has been named

the recipient of the

the advanced

degree

C.R.N.P., associate professor of nursing and director of the graduate nursing program at Miserscholarship from Nightingale Awards of Pennsylvania.

HAGE

Family Practice by the American Academy of Nurse Practitio-Practitioner, a Gerontologic Nurse Practitioner and in Informatics Nursing by the American live in Dallas Township.

Brenda L. Hage, Ph.D., Nurses Credentialing Corporation.

Dr. Hage maintains an active clinical practice in the specialty of physical medicine and rehabilitation with Northeastern Rehabilitation Associates, Wilkes-Barre, and in family practice as a volunteer with the Hope Clinic, Trucksville.

She received her bachelor's degree in nursing from the University of the State of New York, Albany; her master's degree at Misericordia University and her Hage is board certified in Ph.D. in health-related sciences with a specialization in gerontology from Virginia Commonners, as an Adult Health Nurse wealth University, Medical College of Virginia campus.

Hage and her husband, Nafty,

TEARIN' IT UP COMMITTEE MEETS

A group of Dallas High School Alumni from the 1960s-2000s will present an unprecedented 'all-class' reunion and music festival at the Luzerne County Fairgrounds on May 29. The event will be open to the public. Members of the Tearin' it Up For the Tear Down Committee are, from left, seated, Joe Simon, Liz (Gerald) Martin, Chris Gillis, Kim (Bonawitz) Turner, Standing, Barb (Burkhardt) Menzel, Diane (Werts) Morse, Brittany Willis, Mike Breakstone, Mike Crane and Patti (Wadas) Snyder. Absent at the time of the photo were Denise Overman and Mark Moran.

Program set for Cross Creek

Church, located two miles books and several church from the light in Trucksville at growth and health resources. 370 Carverton Rd., welcomes back Dr. Dave Earley on April ages all families, friends and congregation for both Sunday special time together. morning services at 9 and 10:45 a.m.

Department of Pastoral Lead- Church is also available. ership at Liberty Baptist Theological Seminary and Liberty 696-0399.

Cross Creek Community University and has written 12

Pastor Dave Martin encourneighbors to join the Cross He will join the Cross Creek Creek Community for this

A fully-staffed nursery will be available for children under Dr. Earley is chairman of the 2 years of age and Junior

For more information, call

Dallas HS tennis team wins, 5-0

The Dallas High School tennis team defeated Berwick, 5-0, recently.

Eathan Pensak(D) defeated C. Fetterolf, 6-4, 6-2; Scot Riccetti(D) defeated D. Volkel, 6-0, 6-0; Andrew Nakkache(D) defeated S. Ceeli 6 - 4, 6 -1; Blake Donovan/Ryan McCarthy(D) defeated B. Haydt/E. Dangelinian, 6 - 1, 6 - 3; and Tyler Tuck/Francios Ross(D) defeated J. Moyer/A. Reyes 7-5, 6-2.

PUZZLE ANSWERS

King Crossword -

Answers

Solution time: 21 mins.

Go Figure! answers 1 8 15 × 2 6 × 5 9 15

Puzzles, Page 2