BILL TARUTIS/ FOR THE DALLAS POST

Trucksville United Methodist Church Staff Parish Relations Committee member Joan Lenahan, right, greets new Pastor Marion Hartman.

PASTOR

The Rev. Marian Hartman started preaching at Trucksville on July 3, and the congregation held a welcoming ceremony for its new pastor on July 10.

The congregation even wore sticker-backed name tags in order to make the new preacher feel comfortable in her surroundings. Some church members already started calling Hartman by her nickname, “Rev.”

“I told her last week after her first sermon, I think we’ll keep her,” said church member Barbie Glowak, of Trucksville.

Hartman, who has been a minister for 31 years, said she’s looking forward to working with the youthful congregation.

“I think there are a lot of younger families here,” she said. “I’m looking forward to the youth group and seeing where it could go. There’s a lot of enthusiasm here.”

Hartman most recently came from the United Methodist Church of Wellsboro. She said her preaching style is about finding practical applications of the scripture while keeping the congregation’s attention.

“I don’t stand on the pulpit,” she said. “I stand among the crowd.”

While growing up, Hartman had always thought of becoming a missionary but chose a career in the education field instead. After so many years on that path, she couldn’t shake her initial aspirations.

“God didn’t let go of me,” she said.

In addition to a passion for preaching, Hartman also enjoys spending time with family. She has an 18-year-old foster son, Kiere, currently in training for the U.S. Army Reserves. He plans to return to the area to finish his senior year of high school.

“That’s when the real fun begins,” she said.
