

Seminary alumni are invited to come home

Wyoming Seminary alumni are invited to attend a weekend of fun, friendship and memories at the Upper School on Friday, Sept. 30 and Saturday, Oct. 1 when Sem holds its annual Homecoming Weekend. Reunion parties for the classes of 1991, 1996, 2001 and 2006 will also be held.

Activities will begin on Friday, Sept. 30 with lunch in Fleck Hall on the Upper School campus, an opportunity to meet and visit with faculty and current students.

The annual Varsity Club Sports Hall of Fame Reception and Banquet, honoring Sem's outstanding athletes, follows later in the evening in the Stetler Learning Resources Center. This year's inductees include James Antinnes, class of 1986; Alana Anzalone, class of 2000; Quentin Harris, class of 1997; Liza Rosenthal Rudick, class of 1989; Matthew Walsh, class of 1989; and Annie Zinkavich, class of 1999. Cost is $20 per person.

Two morning alumni athletic events will kick off the Homecoming activities on Saturday, Oct. 1 beginning with alumni tennis matches at the O. Charles Lull Tennis Center and an alumni soccer game at Nesbitt Field.

Following the games, all alumni and their families are invited to the Homecoming Lunch at Nesbitt Field.

The afternoon Homecoming soccer game at Nesbitt Field will feature the Blue Knights, led by head boys soccer coach Rev. Charles Carrick, taking on the Trojans of Nanticoke High School. Half-time activities include presentations of the Alumni Service Awards and the Outstanding Young Alumnus Award to Kingston resident Stephen Rosenthal, class of 1993.

Following the game, alumni are invited to visit with faculty and school administrators at a Faculty-Alumni Reunion Reception at the Laycock House, followed by class reunion gatherings at off-campus locations.

All events except for the Sports Hall of Fame and class reunion parties are free for Wyoming Seminary alumni, but reservations are required. Alumni may register by mail, phone or online, using the Homecoming registration form at www.wyomingseminary.org/homecoming.

For more information and reservations contact Julie McCarthy Strzeletz '81, director of alumni programs, at 270-2142 or e-mail at jstrzeletz@wyomingseminary.org.
