

Sisters hike Grand Canyon

Jacqueline Lane and Colleen Reed, daughters of John and Arlene Bergevin, of Dallas, recently completed a 44.5 mile hike that included over 18,000 feet of elevation loss and gain in the Grand Canyon National Park.

The sisters entered the canyon on October 29 to celebrate their recent birthdays, with a combined age of over 100 years. The endeavor included two days of camping at Cottonwood Campground on the north side of the canyon and over 14 miles of hiking each day.

Lane, a rookie hiker and backpacker from Naples, Florida embraced the challenge with her sister, a Flagstaff, Arizona resident for the last decade and experienced Grand Canyon Hiking Guide.

An ever-smiling Lane continually commented about the awesome views and unbelievable landscape of the southwest and the incredible vistas of the Grand Canyon.

Lane resides with her husband Larry and Golden Retriever, Casey. Reed lives with her faithful companions, King and Bella, Great Pyrenees and Newfoundland dogs.

The women are the second and third of the Bergevins' five daughters.
