MU celebrates Black History Month

The Misericordia University Office of Inclusive Excellence Multicultural Education Program have planned a series of events for Black History Month in February, including a film series, interactive workshops and a special slate of activities for Dream Week 2012: Project H.O.P.E. (Honoring Others Personal Experiences).

The Misericordia University Black History Month Film Series begins at 8:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 17 with the presentation of "Night Catches Us" in Alden Trust Room 219 of Sandy and Marlene Insalaco Hall.

The film, set in 1976, is directed by Tanya Hamilton, who spoke on the MU campus during the fall semester, and examines the complex political and emotional forces set in motion when a young man returns to the race-torn Philadelphia neighborhood where he came of age during the Black Power movement.

The movie, "Soundtrack for a Revolution," will be screened at 8:30 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 20 in Alden Trust Room 219 of Insalaco Hall.

The film tells the story of the American civil rights movement through its powerful music. It features new performances of the freedom songs by top artists, including John Legend, Joss Stone, Wyclef Jean and The Roots, as well as archival footage and interviews with civil rights foot soldiers and leaders.

The viewing is open free to the public.

The Black History Month Film Series concludes at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 28 with the screening of "For Colored Girls" in the Catherine Evans McGowan Room of the Mary Kintz Bevevino Library.

The film is based on the play, "For Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide When the Rainbow is Enuf."

Each of the 20 poems addressed in the movie deals with intense issues that particularly impact women in a thought-provoking commentary on what it means to be a female of color in the world. The viewing is open free to the public.

Misericordia University is also offering a series of Dream Week 2012: Project H.O.P.E. workshops which will focus on H.O.P.E. in various ways throughout the week with the intention of sharing and learning from the stories and experiences of others.

The workshops begin at 8:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 21 in Muth Room 217 of Insalaco Hall

Individuals with the HIV virus will be present as a panel to share their personal stories and experiences with the audience and to answer questions. Health care professionals will also be in attendance to talk about the virus.

The program is open free to the public.

Patrick Hamilton, Ph.D., assistant professor of English at Misericordia University, will present ethnic American literature and stories of H.O.P.E. from those who were disenfranchised in America's past.

Co-sponsored by the English Department, the program is being held at 8:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 22 in Muth Room 217 of Insalaco Hall.

The program is open free to the public.

For more information, call Dan Kimbrough at 674-6214.
