The DALLAS POST 50¢

WILKES-BARRE, PA.

www.mydallaspost.com

AN EDITION OF THE TIMES LEADER

DAMA recycling is huge success

By SARAH HITE shite@mydallaspost.com

Due to overwhelming volumes, the Dallas Area Munici- $3,600 - all of which will go pal Authority has increased it recycling collection to every week as of Feb. 20.

Larry Spaciano, executive director of DAMA, attributes the increase in recycling collection to the authority's new single stream recycling program. Cusglass and cardboard, making re-rates. cycling easier than ever.

ciano.

Spaciano said the increased day anyway. recycling collection will also encourage customers to recycle said. more often because of the quick turnaround.

cycling to the curb at one time," he said. "We looked at it overall the entire Back Mountain. He and said it's probably going to hopes the program will continbe more cost-effective for us ue with an educational aspect and a lot easier for the residents to promote recycling throughif we do it on a weekly basis." out the community.

Spaciano said recycling isn't just good for the environment it's also going to save DAMA RECYCLING customers money in the long cling Services and then, de- and cannot recycle. pending on the market, they'll These are OK to recycle: 1-7 win-win for us."

recycling center, whatever mon- als, tin cans and water bottles. ey they received for the materials was theirs to keep.

quent recycling collection.

waste supervisor, hopes to in- cardboard; and window glass. crease the recycling opportunities for residents, including pro-recycling, contact DAMA at viding outlets for recycling elec- 696-1134.

Now DAMA is reaping the benefits of its own program. The authority received its first check in January for about back into the program and eventually save customers tronics and tires. He also said tomers no longer have to sep- the return on the program will arate materials like plastic, allow DAMA to stabilize its

Spaciano said, despite the in-"We've collected about 15 creased collection, there won't more tons this January com- be additional costs for manpowpared to last January," said Spa- er or vehicles because the crews are out collecting garbage every

"It will even itself out," he

Spaciano said convenience and the way the program is de-...It was more difficult for signed has encouraged customem to take out that much re- ers to increase their recycling habits which, in turn, benefits

SINGLE STREAM

With DAMA's new program, customers can mix recyclable "We have an agreement; we materials in the same bin. take it down to Northeast Recy- Here's a list of what you can pay us a certain amount for the plastics, aluminum cans, alumicycling," he said. "The bot- num foil, cardboard, cereal boxom line is we never have to es, color paper, detergent botpay to get rid of it, even if the tles, empty aerosol cans, envebottom of the recycling market lopes (window OK), egg cardrops out. It doesn't cost us tons, file folders, glass jars and anything to get rid of it, so it's a bottles, hard and soft cover books, juice and milk cartons, Before DAMA took on its junk mail, newspapers and inown solid waste and recycling serts, magazines and brochures, collection, whatever recyclable multi 3-ply paper, white paper, materials collected were the paperboard boxes, phonebooks property of the hauler, Spaciano and catalogs, plastic milk jugs, said. Therefore, when compa- plastic soda bottles, pots and nies took the materials to the pans, school papers, small met-

These are NOT OK to recycle: drinking glasses; frozen Now DAMA is reaping the food, ice cream or frozen juice benefits of its own program. containers; hazardous or bio-The authority received its first hazardous waste; light bulbs, check in January for about plates or vases; mirrors, ceram-$3,600 - all of which will go ics or Pyrex; napkins; needles; back into the program and paper to-go containers; paper eventually save customers mon-towels; plastic 6-pack holders; plastic microwave trays; plastics Spaciano said, hopefully, the other than those listed; scrap amounts of those checks will metal; shredded paper; stickers increase due to the more fre- or sheets of address labels; Styrofoam; syringes; tissues; Tyvek Bill Feher, DAMA's solid envelopes; waxed paper; waxed

For more information about

CHARLOTTE BARTIZEK/ FOR THE DALLAS POST

Dallas Area Municipal Authority collectors Rick Earl, left, and Josh Backes combine paper and plastics into one of the new recycling trucks.

CHARLOTTE BARTIZEK/ FOR THE DALLAS POST

No, you are not seeing things. Those yellow swim caps belong to Lake-Lehman swimmers Amelia Jenkins, left, Jolisa Copeman, center, and Sammy Sabol and they are in the pool at the Dallas Middle School Natatorium for a recent meet against Pittston Area. The Lake-Lehman swim team uses the Dallas facility for practice sessions and home meets.

FRIENDLY RIVALRY

Black Knights swim team considers Dallas Middle School Natatorium its home pool.

By SARAH HITE shite@mydallaspost.com

The rivalry between the Dallas and Lake-Lehman high school swimming and diving coach Lake-Lehman divers. teams is a little friendlier than one might think.

which started competing in the away meet. Lake-Lehman divers 2007, entered into an agreement with Dallas this year to utilize its practices at Misericordia Uni-Health Complex.

Nancy Edkins, coach of the tor to work out a schedule. Lake-Lehman swim, said the

was no diving team.

larger facility equipped with sevalways comes first because it's their facility." eral diving boards. Erin Cooper Yurko was hired late last year to

The Black Knights compete at Dallas when the Mountaineer The Lake-Lehman team, swimmers and divers are at an cility."

Edkins, who is also principal of Lake-Noxen Elementary

"We're two neighboring disthe lack of diving facilities, there comes first because it's their fa- supportive, and worked with us See RIVALRY, Page 12

"We're two neighboring districts - we should be The Dallas pool, which is lo-trad in the middle school is a friends. The coaches here are fair with us. (Dallas)

> Nancy Edkins Lake-Lehman swim coach

Stretanski, who coached the Wyoming Valley Conference in always train at the Dallas facility. Dallas swim team for 14 years, said the Dallas team had similar pool for home meets. The team School, met with Matt Stretan- was built at the middle school in cilities.

"When we wanted to start divteam previously held all of its tricts - we should be friends," ing, Wyoming Valley West, with Lake-Lehman, but we'd do swim meets and practices at Missaid Edkins. "The coaches here Wyoming Area, Wilkes-Barre Arit for anyone," he said. sericordia University, but due to are fair with us. (Dallas) always ea and other districts were very to get us practice time," he said. "One year, we had our home meets at Nanticoke."

Stretanski, who is also a histoissues before the natatorium ry teacher at the middle school, said when Lake-Lehman offiski, former Dallas swimming 2002. The team held practices at cials approached him and others versity's Anderson Sports and coach and current pool manager, Misericordia and couldn't have a about the possibility of using the and the district's athletic direc- diving team due to the lack of fa- Dallas pool, he said it was like paying it forward."

"We have a good relationship

DHS students learn from the pros

By SARAH HITE shite@mydallaspost.com

Calling all local professionals Dallas High School students want to hear from you.

The Dallas High School guidance department recently launched its "Career Spotlight Speaker Series," in which local professionals, Dallas graduates or parents of Dallas students school students about a particular job field.

Jones said the series is part of a ney.' new directive in career preparation that will eventually be ready had three programs in students at one time of the day ed the presentation offered by mandated by the state Depart- the following fields: dentistry, in the guidance department. ment of Education.

"We actually plan to be well ahead of the game," said Jones.

at the new high school features is more encouraging for kids. a career resource center, comfor students to explore colleges gether," said Jones.

FOR MORE INFORMATION

If you are interested in presenting to Dallas High School seniors in the "Career Spotlight Speaker Series," contact the high school guidance department at 674-7218.

and career paths on their own. prepare you for your future con-are invited to speak to high tribution to society," said Jones. futures. "If you make it relevant to the student, the student takes own-Guidance counselor Robyn ership of their high school jourvideo game arts and engineering. The idea is to bring in Dal-Along with the speaker se- students. Jones said having lo- partment," she said. ries, the guidance department cals explain their career paths

"We're trying to get the plete with a group counseling home, school, community - that hopes community members in room and computers available dynamic triangle - to get to-

Jones hopes the program will "The philosophy is that eventually become self-sustainyou're here at Dallas High ing, and she would like to see School to get an education to the entire school participate in helping students' realize their

For example, Jones said, a person in a science field could talk to several science classes in a day. Right now, the program The speaker series has al- is held twice a month for a few

"Then you have the entire See PROS, Page 12 school involved in career planlas alums or parents of current ning, not just the guidance de-

> The most difficult part in creating this speaker series is finding the speakers, and Jones various fields will eventually begin to volunteer to speak to

"Let's bring people back who graduated to see our brandspanking beautiful new building and to give back to the school that gave so much to (them)," she said. "And not just graduates, but people in the community who live back here. What better teacher is there than experience?"

Students seem to agree. Several students said they have benefited from the program, including senior Jess Adams, who hasn't decided on his career yet but has a better idea due to the speaker series.

Adams, 17, of Dallas, attend-

