Local police officers will undergo week-long training

The Luzerne County Alcohol Highway Safety Program will hold a week-long training program for local police officers from May 7-11 at Luzerne County Community College.

It will be the first such county-wide training offered to multiple police departments in more than 20 years and is expected to draw officers from several departments, including Wilkes-Barre, Pittston, Plains Township, Kingston Township, Harvey's Lake, West Pittston and Newport Township. Several departments from outside the county will also attend.

The program is being conducted in cooperation with the Luzerne County District Attorney's Office, the Pennsylvania DUI Association and Luzerne County Community College.

The program will offer police officers instructions on how to properly set up DUI checkpoints and training on all aspects of DUI law. It will also offer instruction of SFST, or Standard Field Sobriety Testing. The courses will take place at LCCC's Public Safety Training Facility.

In addition to police officers from throughout the county, the program will be observed by Luzerne County officials, including District Attorney Stefanie Salavantis. Representatives from the Pennsylvania DUI Association will also attend.
