

Misericordia University student Mariah Fabbri, of Pittston, guides Little Meadows pre-school student Rebekah Jia, 5, of Dallas, through a lesson on how to paint a birdhouse.

Misericordia University student Taylor Lawler '13, Harveys Lake, teaches Little Meadows student Tyler Hendricks, 5, of Dallas, how to use a measuring spoon during a lesson on making ice cream.

Misericordia University student Mariah Fabbri, of Pittston, looks on as Kaitlynn Keller, 4, of Dallas, intently paints a birdhouse during the Methods in Early Childhood outing on the campus.

Misericordia University student Kristen Abrams, of Liberty, N.Y., observes as Little Meadows student Isabella DeCesaris, 4, of Dallas, listens intently to a lesson about how to paint a birdhouse during the Methods in Early Childhood outing on the campus.

Youngsters, MU students unite

Every Tuesday during the spring semester, Misericordia University students in the Methods in Early Childhood Education class of associate professor Sister Patricia McCann, RSM, went on a field trip of sorts and spent their class time at the Little Meadows Learning Center getting a firsthand look at early childhood education in action.

The semester-long project culminated with juniors in the teacher education program hosting Little Meadows pre-kindergarten students on campus for a morning of fun and educational activities, which gave the collegians an opportunity to practice what they had learned throughout the semester.

Misericordia students who participated in the class included Taylor Lawler, of Harveys Lake; Mariah Fabbri, of Pittston; Kristen Abrams, of Liberty, N.Y.; Kimberly Athanas, of Montgomery, N.Y.; and Giovanna Feula, of Long Valley, N.J. Misericordia University alumna Jeanette Niebauer, a psychology major from the Class of 2000, joined the Hildebrandt staff in 2002 and is the assistant director at Little Meadows.

The Misericordia students chose to emulate The Lands at Hillside Farms for their annual on-campus event. They decorated the Catherine Evans McGowan Room of the Mary Kintz Bevevino Library with large, colorful paper flowers, bales of hay and three-dimensional animal pictures. The Misericordia students guided the youngsters through lessons where they planted seeds in containers, simulated milking a cow, painted bird houses and learned how to make ice cream.

Watch the prez debate at MU hall

The Misericordia University Government Law and National Security program is hosting the symposium, "U.S. Presidential Debate: Analysis and Commentary," from 9 to 11 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 3 in Dudrick Room 216 of Sandy and Marlene Insalaco Hall on campus.

The event is open free to the public and refreshments will be served.

The symposium will provide the campus community and members of the general public an opportunity to watch the first nationally-televised debate between the two presidential candidates on a big screen and to participate in a post-debate discussion with political science and history scholars, Brian Carso, J.D., Ph.D., associate professor of history and director of the Government Law and National Security program; and Lawrence Goldstone, Ph.D., a well-known author of narrative history and historical fiction who holds a doctorate in constitutional studies from the New School of New York City.

For more information, call 674-6400.

Wyoming battle to be discussed

The Back Mountain Historical Association is offering the presentation, "The Battle of Wyoming," by Stephen B. Killian, Esq., at the annual fall meeting at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 17 in Lemmond Theater in Walsh Hall at Misericordia University.

The program is open free to the public and light refreshments will be served.

Killian is a local attorney and historian. Registration may be made by calling 674-8036.
