point guard.

Cody Paraschak, a 6-foot-4 junior, put in the work in the offseason to make himself into a probable starter.

Juniors Vince Williamson and sophomores Mike Symeon and Brian Devine should also be in the mix at guard.

DALLAS LOSES STARTING LINEUP

Dallas lost the starting lineup from a team that went 15-9, including winning the second-half and all-season titles in Division 2.

Sophomore forward/center Fell, junior guard Matt Seba and sophomore guard Matt Ross were three of the team's top four players off the bench last season.

"Allen is going to be the focal point," Miller said of Fell, one of his captains. "We want most of our offense to go through him."

Junior guard Chad DeBona is trying to work his way into the lineup.

Mathon could often join Fell on the inside.

"He's going to play a good amount of minutes for a freshman," said Miller, who is beginning his second season as Dallas coach. "He's very tall, very long with a good wing span and, for his size, he's very coordinated."

"He's developing still, but he's going to be a very good player."

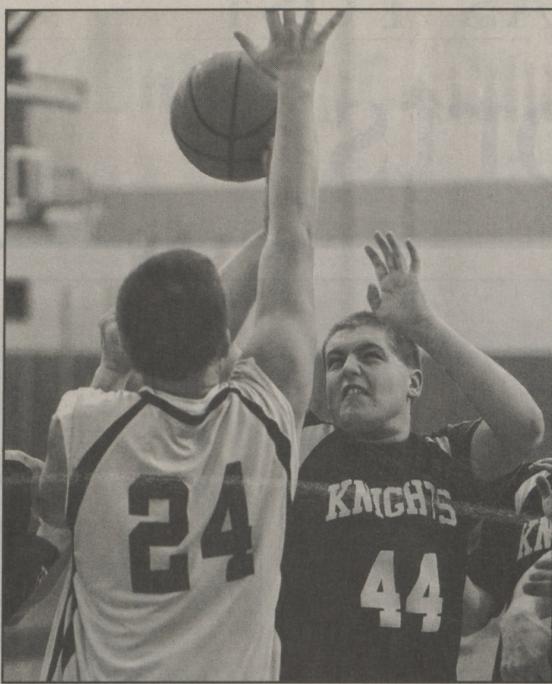

Guards Kristian Dyrli and John Murray are the only seniors on the roster. Miller said both will be in the rotation of substitutes, along with junior guard Stephen Wempa and sophomore forward Omar Nimjeh.

Dallas will be part of Division 1 with likely contenders Hazleton Area, Crestwood and Wyoming Valley West as well as Pittston Area, Coughlin, Berwick and Tunkhannock.

Dallas had winning records in each half, then reached the District 2 Class AAA semifinals before having its season end at 14-8 with a two-point loss to eventual champion Honesdale.

While Dallas returns its top three players among a large group of experienced players back, Lake-Lehman returns the two other all-stars behind team leader Nikki Sutliff, who graduated.

"There are a number of combinations that we're looking at," Dallas coach Kelly Johnson said. "I'm kind of excited about it right now because of the depth."

Seniors Ashley Dunbar, Tanner Englehart and Jess Hiscox all return to lead Dallas.

Dunbar runs the offense from the point guard position and also led the Lady Mountaineers in scoring last season.

Englehart provides an inside presence on a team that may rely on many guards, including Hiscox.

"We have six guards who could all be a significant part of the rotation," Johnson said. "Depending on our needs and our opponent, our lineup will be adjusted."

"There will be games when it is three guards and two forwards. There might even be times when it is four guards and one forward."

Junior Sam Missal, a 3-point shooting threat, and sophomore Talia Szatkowski, who joined Dunbar in double figures in scoring in the season-ending loss, are part of the guard combination with Dunbar and Hiscox. Juniors Kaitie Comitz and Taylor Kelley, who are among the 10 players with varsity experience, are the other guards.

Senior Rachel Olszewski and juniors Maggie Michael and Steph Cybulski are the other experienced forwards.

Dallas opens in the Wyoming Valley West Tournament Dec. 8 and 11.

SPENCER, SUTTON LEAD LAKE-LEHMAN

Lake-Lehman is led by the return of sophomore Cayle Spencer and junior Emily Sutton. Spencer led the team in scoring as a freshman and Sutton was third.

"Spencer may see a little more time outside," Lavan said. "Depending on how things are going at the point, Sutton could probably handle that.

"She's very tough on the baseline and down low, but we could use her as a taller guard who could see over the defense," Lavan added.

The Lady Knights also return two seniors and two more sophomores who have varsity experience.

"We mixed up the lineup a lot early in the season, so some of them got one or two starts," Lavan said.

Senior Jen Konopinski is expected to take over as the point guard. Karen Yamrick is a guard while Bethany Williams and Nicole O'Connor play in the frontcourt.

Danae Sutcliffe and Lexi Oplinger also earned varsity time last season as freshmen, something guard Julia Eneboe may do this season.

Junior Amy Williams also has some limited experience on the varsity level.
