

Beating the summer heat

It's been downright hot around these parts lately with temperatures soaring into the 90s and humidity levels just as high. Back Mountain residents, however, know how to keep cool. Although humidity was expected to be a little lower this weekend, there's still plenty of summer — and summer fun — remaining.

Best of friends Lauren Chapple and Carly Cavanaugh cool off together at the pool at Newberry Estates.

CHARLOTTE BARTIZEK PHOTOS/ FOR THE DALLAS POST

Sean Murphy, of Harveys Lake, enjoys an ice cream cone at Back Mountain Bowl in Dallas.

Reagan Wojtowich, Ally Young and Aidan Chapple, in rear, have fun playing in the wading pool at Newberry Estates.

Leigh Mulherm, of Dallas, and Mike Zablodny, of Kingston, have fun cooling off in Harveys Lake.

Holly Egbert, of Shavertown, refreshes herself in the pool at Newberry Estates, Dallas.

Chris Dailey, of Dallas, and Sara Hodakowski, of Kingston, cool their toes at Harveys Lake pole No. 38.

Lifeguard Drew Harding, of Dallas, takes a long swig of water while on duty at the Harveys Lake Beach Club.

LEFT: Hayla Bryant doesn't hesitate to plow into the waiting pool at Newberry Estates to cool off in this heat.