TEACHERS GIVEN

There are nineteen teachers in the schools of East Hempfield district. 27. Since the consolidation of the schools gam has begun five small schools have been closed, and the pupils from has begun five small schools have been closed, and the pupils from those localities are now in graded schools at Landisville, Rohrerstown and East Petersburg. The benefits resulting from the efforts of the board are noticeable. Greater interest and greater progress can be seen. The transportation by trolley removes the objection found in some localities. The work of the teachers of the district reflects credit upon the instruction. The directors have been successful in filling the schools with teachers who are capable and progressive.

Landisville

At Landisville
At Landisville a decided improvement was made by the addition to the former building. The new part cost $18,000, and the building is now a very complete one. The fan system for heating and ventilating has been installed, a pressure system is used for the water supply, and the toilets are in the building. The light is good, and the pupils can work under very favorable conditions. Besides the High School room on the second floor there are two grade rooms, with ample cloak rooms on the first floor. The High School room can be en-The High School room can be en-larged and made into a good audi-ence room for community meetings. This feature is a community meetings. This feature is a commendable one. Every district should have such a room. The school should be the centre for community life. At Rothsville the new building is also well adapted for meetings held for the discussion of matters of public in discussion of matters of pubic in-terest. In other places the regular High School room is used for public

The High School at Landisville, is in a flourishing condition. M. W. Metzger has been the successful principal for the last seven years. A much larger attendance is expected on Sn.
