SATURDAY, MAY 11th, 1918.

The consumer wants to pay a low price for meat.

The farmer wants to get a high price for cattle.

The packer stands between these conflicting demands, and finds it impossible to completely satisfy both.

The packer has no control over the prices of live stock or meat, and the most that can be expected of him is that he keep the difference between the two as low as possible. He does this successfully by converting animals into meat and distributing the meat at a minimum of expense, and at a profit too small to be noticeable in the farmer's returns for live stock or in the meat bill of the consumer.

Swift & Company's 1917 transactions in Cattle were as follows:

ß		Aver	age Per Head
Sold Meat to Retailer for			$68.97
Sold By-products for .	•		24.09
Total Receipts			93.06
Paid to Cattle Raiser .			84.45
Balance (not paid to Cattle Rai	se	er)	8.61
Paid for Jabor and expenses	s	at
Packing House, Freight on Meat,
and Cost of operating Bra	n	ch
distributing houses			7.32
Remaining in Packer's hands	3	as
Returns on investment .	•		$ 1.29
3

The net profit was $1.29 per head, or about one-fourth of a cent per pound of beef.

By what other method can the difference between cattle prices and beef prices be made smaller, and how can the conflicting demands of producer and consumer be better satisfied?
