FAIR REFUGEE SAFE.

SENORITA CISNEROS AND RESCUEE KARL DECKER IN NEW YORK.

With Her Pretty Face Hidden Under a Sombroero Brim She Fooled the Spanish Detectives--She Kneelt in Prayer When She Saw America.

New York, Oct. 15--Senorita Evangelina Costo y Cisneros, who had passed so many weary months in a Spanish prison in Havana, is now safe in New York. She arrived here Thursday morning on the Ward line steamship Seneca, after a thrilling escape from Cuba dressed as a man and under an assumed name. The young fugitive was taken from the steamer at quarantine, and, after reaching this city in a tugboat, was taken to the Waldorf.

The way in which Senorita Cisneros escaped from Havana, when the steamer sailed last Saturday, was no less startling than her escape from the Recoletos jail in Havana three nights before, when her rescue was effected by two reporters of the New York Journal, one of whom, Karl Decker, arrived in the city last night.

Since her sensational flight from captivity until Saturday evening Senorita Cisneros was kept concealed somewhere in Havana. All the time she was waiting in fear and trembling, dreading recapture, plans for her flight to this city were being arranged.

A transportation ticket and passport made out in the name of Mr. Juan Bola were obtained for the girl, so that on Saturday evening, a short time before the Seneca weighed anchor, everything was ready for the venture. Disguised as a man, with her long black hair concealed under a sombrero, Senorita Cisneros boldly boarded the vessel alone.

Two Spanish detectives, stationed at the head of the gangway ladder to watch for fugitives, stopped the girl and, as she waited in suppressed excitement, examined the passport and ticket. Senorita Cisneros, when the papers were returned to her, hastened to her stateroom. She brought no baggage with her, but this apparently excited no comment.

Until the steamer started, two hours and a half later, the young woman did not leave her room. A short time before the vessel sailed the chief of police, accompanied by his deputy and secretary, boarded the Seneca, but made no attempt to search for the fugitive. They examined all the passports, but apparently suspected nothing when they saw the one made out to Mr. Juan Bola.

And so, after adventures such as have come to few young women, the pretty refugee found herself moving toward the hospitable shores of America. The stars and stripes floated from the stern of the Seneca and the lights of Havana soon faded away.

When she arose the next day and saw only the ocean on all sides, Senorita Cisneros found her secret too good to keep and told it to the stewardess, Mrs. J. C. Burrows, and other ladies equally prominent, who had offered to chaperon the little exile.

KARL DECKER.

He, who provided proper attire for the girl, Senorita Cisneros then appeared on deck wearing the clothes in which she landed.

The fugitive had been booked as Mr. Juan Bola, but to make the entry in keeping with her appearance a slip of paper bearing the name "Mier" was pasted over the "Mr.," and the name "Juan" was changed to "Juan."

Her Prayer of Thankfulness.

Cape Hatteras light was the first thing Senorita Cisneros saw on the coast. When she learned that the light was in the United States, the young woman was overcome by emotion and, before all the passengers, knelt on the cabin floor and prayed. As she arose, she wept. The first sight of the country she had heard so much about had proved too much for her overstrained nerves.

Among Miss Cisneros' fellow passengers on the Seneca were Hon. Walter H. Baker, United States consul at Burgos in Granada, H. T. Stewart, Mrs. B. Lantz and Mrs. Del Real.

GUNBOAT FOR YUKON

IT WILL DO POLICE DUTY ON THE ALASKAN RIVER.

Proposes to Protect the Gold Country With Naval Opinion on the Extent of Alaska's Goldfields.

San Francisco, Oct. 30--Naval men here are much interested in a proposed scheme to put the navy in charge of policing the Yukon instead of the army. Senator Perkins and Congressman Hillborn will ask for speedy action on an urgency appropriation of $5,000 for boats and equipment of men to operate on the Yukon next season. Secretary Long, it is said, will incorporate the main features of this plan in his next report. The secretary is now having plans prepared for a flat bottomed, stern wheel gunboat of 275 tons burden and a speed of 12 knots, as well as specifications for arctic outfit for the marines and sailors necessary to man the craft and the stations to be placed along the valley. The ship will be 125 feet long and 22 feet beam, with tubular boilers and high pressure engine. Unlike ordinary river craft, she will be housed in completely, with quarters for the men on the main deck as well as on the cabin floor. She will be armed with 3-pounder swivel guns and gatling. There will be three launches of light draft and several smaller boats.

To Establish Three Stations. The plan is to establish three stations, with Milook and Circle City at the extremes. At each would be placed a launch with 30 marines and 5 blue-jackets, while 15 marines and 25 sailors would make up the crew of the gunboat. Regular posts would be established at points selected and dog teams kept there, so that a winter patrol could be maintained by the use of sledges.

Senator Perkins, in talking of the scheme, said: "It is necessary that some show of power be made in Alaska, and I think of nothing better than to give the work to the navy. It will be practically all water travel, and naval force are better able to handle boats and themselves while afloat. To send an infantry force to some one point would be the putting a regiment in Idaho to watch Algonquin Indians. A steamer will be necessary to patrol. In fact, I think we should have a steamer on the Copper river as well."

DESERTED HIS BRIDE.

Trenton, Oct. 29--Matthew Cunningham yesterday afternoon married Ella Reed and then deserted her at the railroad station and jumped on a passing train, Ella Reed, with her bridesmaids, followed, yelling:

"Stop that man! He is going to desert me!"

Even Justice Van Nest, who tied the knot, was in the chase. Cunningham kept his promise to Ella Reed and then left town.

Cunningham hails from Nova Scotia. He went to Hightstown to better his prospects and fell in love with Mrs. Reed, who was a trifle older than he was. Mrs. Reed had come from Virginia to better her prospects also.

Cunningham agreed to marry Mrs. Reed. He postponed the wedding several times because he did not have the price of the feast. She forced the issue, and the two, with a group of friends, repaired to Justice Van Nest's office, where they were united.

Cunningham appeared to enjoy the ceremony and kissed the bride cordially, after which the party started for home to have the wedding breakfast. The morning train had just pulled into the station. Cunningham heard the conductor shout "All aboard!" and ran. He did the bride, but she was fat, and he ran best. The bridal party followed, and Justice Van Nest brought up the rear.

Cunningham reached the depot as the train pulled out. He bounded onto the back platform and yelled:

"Goodby, sweetheart, goodby!"

The bride became hysterical and was taken home in a carriage. She says she doesn't know why she was deserted.

Government Currency.

The reason bank circulation has been decreasing through a term of years, and why it is insidious, remaining almost without change from season to season, is that the security for it is a deposit of government bonds. The bank capital is in the treasury instead of in business. The profits on circulation decline as the bonds increase in value or the rate of interest declines, and the redemption process is slow and ineffective. The dangers of the government currency and the deficiencies of the bank currency are now pretty well recognized, and every day shows increased earnestness in the demands of business men for a complete and permanent cure.--Iron Age.

All values would quickly adjust themselves to this depreciated dollar and would fluctuate with its changing value in international exchange.

Get More and You Get Less

Why is it every sarsaparilla which tries to sell itself, ranges itself against Ayer's as the standard? Why is it that all have to offer extra inducements--bigger bottles, fancy wrappers, cheaper price--anything, everything, but the one inducement of quality?

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has never been equaled by any cheap imitation of it, and quality tells, just as blood tells.

It is the Standard.

"I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla for more than twenty-five years, and have never heard anything but words of praise from any customer; not a single complaint has ever reached me. A preparation must possess great merit to maintain such a reputation. I believe your sarsaparilla to be the best blood purifier that has ever been introduced to the general public. I often hear other manufacturers say that this is 'as good as Ayer's,' but no one ever yet heard it said that Ayer's was 'as good' as any other kind. They always set Ayer's up as the standard of excellence."--S. F. Borcz, Duluth, Minn.

The 7-page Earners' Interest.

Appreciation of the dollar in which wages are paid and consequent lower prices are constantly and certainly to the advantage of the wage earner. Depreciation of the dollar and consequent higher prices are always and certainly to his damage.
