LAYTON.

It is currently reported that Evi Brink will re-open his place, at Tuttle's Corner, as a hotel, this spring.

Ed. Conkling moves from opposite the mill of Wash. Lantz to a farm near Deckertown.

The road machine has been nicely planted, and I presume as soon as the new cutting edge arrives it will be put at work. The policy of the first two or three years the machine was used, should be adhered to now namely, a continual and persistent effort to widen all the main roads in the working of them. It indicates a broader spirit, and gives promise of real and genuine improvement to our thoroughfares. The narrowing up has been continued long enough, surely.

If the Walpack squad really wants to have a lively old time, why not open negotiations with our manager of the negro-ground, then they could do genuine business. If this intimation results in a deal we will charge no commission for our valuable assistance. We suggest that when you go for talent you want to go to the top, and our manager is an artist in his profession, and no mistake.

I hear that the ruses has a new Devil (with a big D) and I have a faint suspicion that it is not a sleepy devil either, for last week he made the words "dead wood" in one of my items road rotten wood. I am almost tempted to fall down and worship this devil, for I am inclined to think that it is a case of "two heads with but a single thought, two hearts that beat as one." In another item a whole line was dropped, but it did not spoil the song. This certainly is not the worst devil I ever knew, and I don't know this one at all. Though I hope to at some future time.

Pastor C.H. Von Glahn preached his farewell sermon Sunday night, previous to his departure for conference. This terminates his second year, and is remarkable for nothing more important than the fact, that by neglecting to keep the church property here in good repair, enough money was diverted to pay his salary in full.

I am afraid that telephone pole near Mr. Everette will fall on Al. Lawson's horse some day, and that the one up by Wash. Lantz's, that has the third felling, leaning up against Mr. Merrill's fence, will be down entirely when the first gale out. I hope we won't have any high winds just yet awhile.

The addition to Doctor Hughes office is being rapidly pushed under the supervision of that old reliable, Geo. W. Van Sickle of Berans.

Elmer Merring moved from near Myrtle Grove to the Isaac Merring farm which he now owns, and will make his permanent home.

One of the twins strayed away a week or so ago, and as nothing could be heard from him it was supposed he was hibernating somewhere in the wilds of Pike or Monroe Counties. The other twin after showing much uneasiness started out in search of the lost one, and as he has not been heard of for a week, it is fondly hoped that they are both got to bed. - Later. One of the twins has turned up again, and apparently with most of his buttons as usual. The Lord be praised.

Wm. Clark of Hainesville reached his 70th birthday last Wednesday. There was a family reunion in the evening at which he was presented with a handsome chair.

Colonel Peter Mellet of New York with two of his grand-children were at the Normandie Inn last Saturday. The Colonel visited the Inn for the coming year to Mrs. Mary O. Hornbeck, the present occupant. The table will be well furnished. Cigars and soft drinks kept, and good stables for the use of the transient public.

New life and a greater interest is being infused into the schools of this town, and when the trustees get through with their visiting, we hope they will meet and report results. This would make their visits of more special interest, and the public would certainly be pleased to hear their views on the condition of the schools.

E. H. Lundy moves to within seven miles of Newark, and is employed on a farm. A modern truck farm for profit means lots of push, and drive, and that means to get a move on these Elijahs. Mrs. Letitia Dupuy moved on the Gidson Struble farm last week. Mrs. Dupuy recently purchased the farm and will reside there permanently.

Wash. Lantz is making considerable improvements at his residence below Hainesville, and is a very busy man now-a-days.

Uncle Nichol a Meeting is in very feeble health, with but faint anticipations of any permanent improvement in the near future.

The Branchville gun club done up the Milford Club, and enjoyed one of Van Ness's fine suppers at the latter's expense, on Saturday last. I have not received the score, but have no doubt the Milford Club gave a good account of themselves too.

B. D. Hursh will spend a portion of next week in New York, buying electrical supplies, noting the advances in electrical engineering, and visiting friends in Brooklyn.

Trailing Arbutus is in bloom, in a few sheltered places. Did you ever see the like Arbutus in bloom on March 25 th. Note it in your diary.

The New Jersey Legislature adjourned sine die last week, and our modern Cincinnati is home again. The lessons he learned while on the Committee of Agriculture will become applied science now. Probably the art of fence building will receive especial attention.

Frank Rosenkrans goes to New York next week to buy goods to stock the new store. The new room, and new goods, will make a fine appearance, and the new proprietor will start business under favorable auspices, with the unlimited good wishes of all.

MATAMORAS.

The Rev. Mr. Curtis, pastor of Epworth church, delivered two very fine sermons at the church on Sunday. At the half past seven service his text was from Mark 10:45. "For even the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give his life a ransom for many." He stated that the object of religion was to make life sweet and satisfactory. When a man has done the best he can under the circumstances, he has done all that God requires of him. Christ was a working man in its largest and most divine sense. He worked for others and was therefore divine. The evening service was on missionary work. His text was Romans, 10 th. chapter, the whole of which constituted the subject of his discourse.

The subject was a congenial one to him, as it has always been his desire to follow a missionary career and to carry the gospel of Christ into foreign lands.

This year closes his work in Matamoras. He has been a faithful worker in the community and has labored earnestly for the welfare of his people, who deeply regret the approaching severance of their relations as pastor and people. That his lot may always be cast in pleasant places is the wish of his many friends in Matamoras.

At the Sabbath school at Epworth church on Sunday afternoon there was a very pleasing program. It was missionary Sunday and exercises appropriate to the occasion were held. Mr. Curtis addressed the school in a pleasing manner and his remarks made a deep impression on his young listeners. The collection from the mission boxes amounted to $7.53. The sum collected from church members for missionary work was $30.50. After the service Mr. Curtis said farewell to the school children and friends who were present.

The Opera Priscilla was a success in Monticello. The members from here report a very pleasant time. A free ride on the cars, and a very nice supper was given the Company. Every thing passed off nicely.

The Christian Endeavor Society connected with Epworth Church, held a Clam Chowder Supper and gave an entertainment on Thursday evening, March 31, at the home of Mrs. R. W. Skinner on Adams street, Matamoras. Admission 10 cents, supper 10 cts. A pleasing program was rendered consisting of recitations, tableaux and music; both vocal and instrumental. All friends of the Society were cordially invited to attend.

A SURGEON'S STORY.

TRAGIC ENCOUNTER WITH A MANIAC BENT ON SUICIDE.

The Desperate Man Placed a Revolver in the Physician's Hand and at the Moment Another Ordered Him to Shoot—The Tragedy That Followed a Fatal.

"Well, I would hardly be willing to say, responded the physician to an inquiry made by one of a group of listeners, "that a man who committed suicide was insane, for I have known several persons who were never suspected of insanity before the act, nor have they been since, who, to my certain knowledge, have attempted suicide. One or two cases have been public, and have got into the newspapers, but the general majority of them are professional secrets, and no one will ever know of them, except those few who know now. That's one of the responsibilities that a physician takes upon himself."

"I recall one instance where I have saved a man from committing suicide, and, though he never showed the slightest symptom of it afterward, I am positive he was crazy as a loon at the time of the attempt. It happened about six years ago in a western city, in a hotel where I was a resident physician. I had met the man in the evening after dinner and had played a game of chess with him in his apartments, the finest suite in the house. He had arrived at the hotel the day before, alone, and had asked for the best rooms, paying for them in advance. Then he had asked for the house physician, and as one result of our acquaintance, we were playing this game of chess. We had had one or two mild drinks during the evening, and after the game was finished, he turned the talk upon suicide, having some very interesting and peculiar ideas on the subject, chief of which was his utter aversion to self-murder under any circumstances whatever. He was so firm in his position that he almost lost his temper when I ventured the assertion that suicide might be almost justifiable."

"In the midst of this conversation he suddenly went into the adjoining room, and returned with two revolvers, which he laid down on the table between us. I didn't understand what they were for, and asked him."

"Well," he answered in the coolest kind of fashion, "the time has come for me to die, and you have got to kill me. My soul would be damned forever if I did it myself, but if you do it, my blood will not be on my own hands. There are two revolvers; you take this one—handing me one—and I'll take the other. As you see, they are both loaded and in perfect condition. If you do not shoot me within a minute, I will shoot you."

"He took out his watch, and, standing five or six feet from me, he counted the ticks, and aimed his gun directly at my head. I saw by his eye that he was crazy, and that I would have to obey him or pay the penalty of my disobedience with my life, and still I did not want to shoot a man, however I might be justified in doing it. With this thought I lifted the revolver, and, taking careful aim, he watching me narrowly, I drew the gun square down upon his forehead, and just as I was about to pull the trigger, I threw it one side and shot for his pistol arm. My intention was good, but I was excited, and my shot only cut through the flesh without disabling him, and before I had time to move, he had fired at my heart. A gasp, but instant in my rest pocket saved me, and the next shot I fired was more to the purpose, and my host was dead without committing suicide."

"I told the story to the landlord, who was my friend and relative, exactly as it occurred, but to the world at large the story went forth that the man had committed suicide while crazed, and the fact that he had been in an asylum was sufficient guarantee that I was telling the truth."

A Cherokee Romance. The marriage of Richard Malone and Miss Mary Hildreth at Caldwell, Kan., is the culmination of a romantic experience. When the Cherokee strip was opened for settlement on September 18, 1893, Malone and Miss Hildreth, at the report of the signal gun along the southern Kansas border, on their well-trained horses, made the famous race over the plain together for a home in the Indian lands.

The claims they desired lay five miles south of Caldwell. They were maintaining a good lead in the mad rush, when suddenly the girths of Miss Hildreth's saddle broke. Her escort saw her dilemma, reined in his horse and assisted her. She could go no further, so they staked two claims side by side.

They then erected a house on Miss Hildreth's claim just across the line. Malone settled a barn, in which he lived during his enforced residence on his claim. Miss Hildreth occupied the house. Last week they both proved up their claims and yesterday they were married.
