

Letter from a Woman

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy frequently cures several members of a family. While it is considered by many to be a Kidney and Bladder Medicine, it is just as certain to cure Dyspepsia, Constipation, Rheumatism, Scrofula and Eczema. This is because it first puts the Kidneys in a healthy condition, so they can sift all impurities from the blood. Healthy blood practically means a completely healthy body.

Here is a letter from Mrs. Capt. PETER RACE, of N. Y.: "My husband was troubled with his kidneys, fearfully with shooting pains through his back. He David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, and is now well and strong. Although seventy years of age, he is as hearty as a man many years younger. I was so troubled with Dyspepsia that it was painful for me to walk. My food did me no good, as my stomach could not digest it. Somebody recommended Favorite Remedy to me, and after taking two bottles of it I was completely cured, and am feeling splendid now. We both attribute our good health to Favorite Remedy."

It is prescribed with unfailing success for Nerve Troubles, and for the Liver and Blood it is a specific. It has cured many that were beyond the aid of other medicine. Ask your druggist for it, and insist upon getting it. Don't take a substitute. It will cost you $1.00 for a regular full-sized bottle.

WHEN MABEL PLAYS WHIST.

"That my trick? I thought you took it."
"Well, the story was like this: Diamonds trumps? I'll show you Jack's deal."
"Yes; I've quite thrown over Chris."
"May I see the third trick back, please? What's the trump now? Spades?"
"Oh, yes!
Well, to call a spade a spade, then she's a fright, I must confess."
"Did I trump your ace? So sorry! Trumps are what? She died that said."
"Hearts? I hear that Jennie Old Girl Quite broke her's for Charlie Cash."
"Not my turn? I thought the king led."
"Clubs are trumps? Oh! yes, you're right."
"By-the-by, they say Tom Nured Goes to his now, every night."

BY MUTUAL CONSENT.

"I like to have young people around me," remarked Mrs. Kenyon. "I take a great interest in them."
"I quite agree with her. I had once met a man who said she was a born modder. I did not go so far as that. I thought that she possessed a natural gift for managing."
"It was a bright morning in May, and she had strolled with me to the garden gate, against which three bicycles were propped."
"Why," she exclaimed, "are not Irene and you going by yourselves?"
"No, we thought it only kind to ask Dora to accompany us."
A reflective look passed over Mrs. Kenyon's face.
"Dora is leaving to-morrow," she remarked. "Her father says he must be in the hum of things again."
"But surely the 'hum' does not claim his daughter as well?"
"A daughter's place," said Mrs. Kenyon, somewhat severely, "is by her father's side."
"Yes, of course," I murmured.
"I have been thinking," she continued, after a pause, "that Irene and you will be settling down shortly."
"Irene was Mrs. Kenyon's niece. Some time ago the thought had occurred to her that we were suited to one another. She had devoted her attention to the matter with her usual completeness of method, and the subsequent engagement was a matter of course."
"I can't say that we have settled as to the exact date," I said.
"It is two years since you were first engaged."
I looked around eagerly to see if the girls were coming.
"Do you know," she continued, "I have discovered the very place for a young couple—an ideal residence."
"I must go and have a look at it," I said vaguely, with another glance to the rear.
"It seems as if it were built for Irene. There is a charming study for her, a room with splendid lights that will do for her painting—a gem of a boudoir."
"It seems a gift from the fairies," I broke in. "What is it called?"
"Hutton House—within a mile of this. It's a chance which should on no account be missed. The only thing is you must decide within three days."
"Not much time," I began.
She turned to me with a bright smile.
"My proposal is that you should leave the whole affair in my hands. What do you say?"
"At that moment Irene and Dora Paget came hurrying across the lawn. I put my finger on my lips, to enjoin secrecy."
"What are you plotting?" cried Dora.
"Oh, merely a little surprise for somebody," I said, with a glance at Irene.
I opened the gate and we wheeled our machines through. We were about to mount when another cyclist rode up. It was Herbert Grierson, a friend.
"I thought you might be riding this morning," he began.
"Very happy thought!" I said cheerfully. "You will make a fourth, and I shall not have to talk so much."
We mounted our machines and proceeded on our way. Presently Dora and myself found ourselves lagging a little behind.
"This isn't at all right, you know," she remarked.
"What isn't?"
"Naturally you should be with Irene."
"My dear Miss Paget, we have the rest of our lives to be together. Irene understands that."
"She is quite exceptional."
"She is very clever, and I admire her immensely."
Dora laughed.
"Is that why you became engaged to her?"
"I didn't. Mrs. Kenyon arranged it for us."
Dora opened her eyes wonderingly.
"Mrs. Kenyon arranged it for you?" she repeated.
"Yes," said I. "She is very thoughtful. She decided it was time for Irene to marry, and she thought I was fitted to become a husband. With admirable tact she managed the whole affair—and we are both very grateful to her."
"And you love one another?" she asked.
"We admire one another," I replied, "and that is an excellent substitute."
"Do you think your tastes are similar?"
"Oh, they are not," I replied frankly; "but we shall make allowances. She is clever and of a staidness of mind; I am quite commonplace, and never happy unless in the open air. We shall follow our own inclinations."
"How about traveling? I know you are a wanderer."
"Irene hates it; she detests 'roughing it' in any form. As I said, we shall see each other as we think best; but perhaps for the sake of appearances, I shall postpone my trip to New Zealand for a month or two."
"New Zealand!" cried Dora. "how lovely! Are you going there?"
"I had thought of it, but I'm afraid I shall have to marry first."

THE FORMER ATTORNEY GENERAL DECLARES HIMSELF.

I hold no brief for any man or set of men. I believe in honest government and pure politics. I am here because I believe the welfare of this state and country is bound up in the success of the Republican party. It stands for honest money and for protection to American industry. It is the party of progress and liberty.
For thirty-eight years the country has been under Republican rule. A comparison between now and then may not be uninteresting.
In 1861, when the Republican party came into power, we had 35,000 miles of railroads; now 200,000 miles. Thirty-one millions of people; now 75,000,000. Sixteen billions of wealth; now $5 billion. Per capita in 1861, $514; in 1890, $1,020. State debt in 1860, $40,000,000; now $1,250,000. In 1860, a bankrupt government that could not borrow money at 10 per cent in any market of the world; now the government borrows $200,000,000 of the people in the face of a foreign war at 5 per cent. The loan was subscribed seven times over and commands 5 per cent premium. Evidently the country can stand a great deal of this kind of thing.
CONFIDENCE.
Confidence is essential to success in business or war. The Wilson tariff bill was the culmination of a free trade agitation begun by Grover Cleveland in 1854. Its failure to provide revenue to support the government and the borrowing of enormous sums of money to meet the ordinary expenses, destroyed the confidence of the nation. The panic which paralyzed industry and sent 2,000,000 men into the face of battle to face starvation was the logical result. Increased distress, low prices for farm products, an ever diminishing stock of gold in the treasury, gave the advocates of free trade and Dewey and Hobson and Wainwright side by side with that of Nelson on the head roll of fame.
I shall we gather the fruits of the political victories of 1896 and the martial victories of 1898, and keep the flag flying where its gorgeous folds have been unfurled, or confess that American ability and character are not equal to the opportunity that the gods of battle has thrust in our way? Shall we assist in the storm of dejection that has assailed the administration and the conduct of our war, and join in the pessimistic views of a Cleveland and Bryan, who doubt the capacity of the American people to justly and successfully meet the responsibilities that a war waged for the sake of humanity has cast upon them?
Let them be answered. The Republican party is able to take care of its own rascals, if there be any. We will not burn down the house to get rid of a troublesome brood of mice that nibbles the state cheese, if such there be. Defeat now could not be explained. We will not adopt a remedy that would be worse than the disease. Would a house of hungry Democrats be an improvement over the house of 1897?
Let all Republicans who glory in the name and who believe in sound money, protection, prosperity and patriotism, rally to the support of a Cleveland and Bryan, who doubt the capacity of the American people to justly and successfully meet the responsibilities that a war waged for the sake of humanity has cast upon them.
Let us send greeting to William McKinley on the 17th of November, the glad tidings that Pennsylvania stands fast by her glorious record of Republican victories, and that she approves of his statesmanship, self sacrificing labors and splendid courage. This plain American citizen has borne upon his heart, in these many days, the vast and unmeasured responsibility of a sudden war. No man has been too severe for him to undertake, no sacrifice too great for him to undergo, that the nation might pass in safety through the dire ordeal of war. During the many weeks and months this patient man has groined in the heart of this people and in the estimation of all the world. He has written his name with that of Washington, the father, and Lincoln, the savior of the country. With them it will be enrolled forever. Shall the state that gave him 300,000 majority seem to reward him with the dishonor of defeat for any reason under the shining canopy of Heaven?
"This year national issues are paramount." This year the Republican party of Pennsylvania owes to the nation and to the Republicans of all the states a special duty to maintain its organization and roll up a majority that will discourage the enemies of sound currency and American industry.
Warmest Meal on Record.
The warmest meal on record on Puget Sound was eaten near Buenna, on the east shore of the sound between Tacoma and Seattle. The feaster was a member of the Bruin family and beehives loaded with honey and living, stinger-loaded honey-makers was the bill of fare.
Mr. Bruin was not at all backward in helping himself, and when the feast was done he had swallowed the honey and bees of one hive and part of those of a second. He left nothing to tell the tale except his footprints on the sand, the partially demolished hive and the home and remainder of the home-stand, together with the doctor, who is busy explaining how it happened and congratulating himself upon his fortunate escape.
