resents bitterly any ladication on the part of his hearer that he has not a free flow of speech. Once in apologicing for his failure to keep an appointment with a friend he started to explain about the accident which had befailen his train.

"I bave j-i-i-ust arrived in the s-ss-s-ss-s-she was hopulessly anchored to that word, and his benevolent friend mildly suggested:

"N-n-n-n-n-ool" shrieked Davis, with a gesture of inexpressible disgust. "D-d-d-d-d-d-darn it, the t-t-t-t-t town, darn it, the town!"

Recently, Colonel Davis was led to break his rule of steering clear of telephones. He was anxious immediately to adjust a bit of business with John Lewis of Boaton. He went to the long-distance telephone at the Hotel Autic in New York, had Mr. Lewis called up, and courageously began the task of making his wishes known, Ninetenths of the conversation consisted of repstifitions of the same consonants, Colonel Davis has known what it was to have trouble with consonants, but on this occasion all his previous experiences were surpassed. Consumants periences were surpassed. Consumanta arose like mountains to check his progress. But perseverance finally made good its reputation for conquering all difficulties, and Colonel Davis completed his arrangements, the telephone pleted his arrangements, the telephone remaining intact. Davis, with a look of deep relief, came forth from the box, wiped his brow, eracked the drip off his finger-ends and offered payment. The girl in charge, with a smile, said:
"It'll cost you $40, sir."
"G-g-gr-great H - H - H - Heavens!"
cried Davis, "I thought the rate was a d-d-d-doi-dollar and s-ss-s-seventy-f-i-ff-five."

"That's for five minutes' talk. We charge extra for each additional minute."

Colonel Davis slowly brought forth a roll of bills from an inner pocket, and murmured, as he paid the $40:
"N-n-n-next t-t-t-time I'll s-a-v-e t-t-t-time and m-m-money by t-t-taking a t-t-t-train."

Negros Still Has Savages. The Island of Negros is mountainous The Island of Negros is mountainous and wild. Its coasts are difficult of access, and the breakers atrong except on the west coast. A high mountain chain crosses it from Point Doong on the north to the harbor and point of Bombouch on the south; from the last third extend several ramifications of high mountains, terminating at the coast on the extreme south and in the Sierra Dumaguete. Its streams are Sierra Dumaguete. Its streams are not important, being short and of little volume. The ground is uneven but fertile. The natives irrigate their estate, and produce tobacco, coffee, sugar cane and wheat. Manufactures consist in fabrics of abaca and canonegro, of which boat cables are made. The in-terior of the island, covered with thick forests, is almost unexplored, being inhabited by a few savages. There are in the island 49 pueblos, 41 barrios and 40 rancherias of subdued infieles.

The east coast of Negros is bordered by a reef, which extends more than a coale from it. Layers of coal have re-
