We offer a line of new Spring Goods,

UNSURPASSED AND COMPLETE.

Our point is that you need not go away from home to supply all your needs, or to secure bargains. We expect to satisfy you in both particulars.

DRY GOODS, new and stylish. GROCERIES, fresh and good. HARDWARE, BOOTS, SHOES, AND CLOTHING. Any thing in any line at bottom prices.

To accomplish this end we have adopted a new system. All our prices are fixed on a basis of cash payment. This obviates the necessity to allow a margin for bad debts and interest. To accommodate responsible parties we cheerfully open monthly accounts, and expect prompt payment monthly, as our prices will not enable us to carry accounts longer.

Statements rendered the first of every month, and if paid within three days from date of bill, a cash discount of 2% is allowed. The same discounts given on all cash purchases exceeding $1.00. Goods sent out will be C. O. D. unless otherwise previously arranged.

Section 20. All laws regulating the holding of elections shall be uniform throughout the State, and shall be uniform in their operation and effect in all cities of the same class.

WEALTH OF TRINITY.

That Church's Annual Income is Over $500,000.

Old Trinity Church, New York City, has attracted distinction in two widely divergent matters: in the honor of its territory, and the wealth of its corporation. What is written below concerns its corporate wealth. As a matter of history, the original church was opened for worship in 1697. This early church was maintained by the income from the "church farm," a colonial grant from above Anne. Out of this income the Reverend William Vasey, first rector of Trinity Church, received a yearly salary of $5,100. To-day the same "church farm" is valued at over $500,000 and the Reverend Morgan Dix receives a salary of $25,000. This salary is more than double that of Bishop Potter of the Diocese of New York, who receives but $12,000.

This large income is exhausted by many claims; the expenses of the church proper, the support of the chapels, the large yearly grants to twenty-four parishes, the payment of taxes and assessments, and the maintenance of the parochial schools and other parish charities. The remainder from the "church farm" properly constitutes the main source of Trinity's income. The property is scattered widely throughout the city. Much of the land is in the hands of the church. It is rented for various purposes—for public buildings, stores and tenements. The year book of Trinity states that the church has a net income of $250,000, and that the several chapels receive $15,000, and each one is furnished with a deputy and an assistant.

The music of the church costs much. The many choir boys receive, each one, from $24 to $100 yearly. The soloists, of which there are eighteen, receive from $200 to $400. For the church itself there is a yearly musical appropriation of $10,000; for each one of the seven chapels, $7,500; making a total of over $100,000. That maintenance of excellent music in churches is right and admirable, is conceded.

The church has ever held music to be a soothing influence on the hearts of the faithful, and to the content. A good work is carried on by Trinity in the matter of its schools. For the maintenance of parochial schools, Trinity expends $100,000, and the sum of $25,000; for the maintenance of night and industrial schools, $5,000.

Trinity Hospital for the sick poor is maintained by the corporation at a yearly expense of $9,000. The incorporation also makes provision for $3,000 for the support of seven beds in other hospitals. From the corporation also a yearly contribution of $10,000 to the poor of $6,000 is made. The whole yearly cost of the maintenance of charities within the parish, which are carried out of the corporation income, averages $50,000; for charities without the parish, $50,000—a total of $100,000.—New York Verdict.

True Gratitude. Soon after the first distribution of committees in the house of representatives Representative Foster of Chicago was introduced to Speaker Henderson. He had received on committee appointment and that an obscure one. He remarked: "I am on a fine committee, Mr. Speaker." Mr. Henderson beamed. "I am very glad," he said. "I always like to see you on a committee." "Oh," said Mr. Foster, solemnly, "I refer to the committee on the whole."

When collected, they were fed, clothed and protected in native quarters and medically comforted under the care of an Imperial Superintendent. The remnant of their number in 1835 was but 203 souls. From a mortality point such natural care seems to have been a failure, as their number in 1847 was reduced to 47. The last male native, called King Billy, became a white man among sailors, adopted their dress and succumbed to excesses in 1869. Truganani or Truganani lived to the fairly ripe old age for an aboriginal, of 66. She was a constant visitor to my fruit garden, and delighted in and indulged much in the freedom of many other gardens until she ended by her death the last chapter of her race in the year 1876.—Pall Mall Gazette.

For Coast Defense. The shipment of sixteen 15-pound guns to the Sandy Hook proving grounds from the factories at Derby, Conn., was begun on January 2. These guns are destined for a new scheme of mine, field and harbor defense, and are an addition to the twenty 6-pounders and two 15-pound coast defense guns which, with their ammunition, have been delivered on contract during the past two months.

Each 15-pound gun weighs 9,780 pounds and costs $4,600. It is 12 feet long, mounted stationary, and has no carriage. This type of gun has been officially adopted by the United States as the standard for coast defense. According to the new plan of defense, the smaller guns, 6-pounders, are mounted near water level, with the larger guns above them. In this way torpedo boats in time of war will be able to explode defending mines, could be reached by the smaller guns, mounted on field carriages, attached by a V-shaped anchor to bolts in the masonry. When the ships are lowered, the big 15-pounders above would come into action.

If it becomes necessary to concentrate the smaller guns upon a given point, or to remove them to the beach, their anchorage chains could be slipped, making them practically field pieces, which could be held to any desired position by a spike in the foot of the carriage. Los Angeles Times.

Horse Trade Rules. David Harum was a good horse trader, but a recent transaction in horsemanship which was made by a well-known Memphis show that there are others who know how to get the long end of horse trade. Several weeks ago this Memphis man saw a fine bay horse which he thought he wanted. He located the owner and asked the price. "One fifty," was the reply. After looking the animal over closely and trying her speed he concluded it was a good trade, and without more ado wrote a check for the amount. The next day he found that the mare was as blind as a bat, but this did not hinder her speed nor detract from her general appearance.

Russia Needs Rolling Stock. Russia has made overtures for the supply of 3,000 freight cars and 200 dining cars for the Trans-Siberian Railway. It is stated that the Russian government contemplates the purchase of more than 30,000 cars. It is said that as many as 6,000 freight cars of many varieties will be needed in France, owing to the exposition.—Chicago News.

Millions will be spent in politics this year. We can't keep the campaign going without money any more than we can keep the body vigorous without food. Dyspepsia used to starve themselves. Now kodol dyspepsia cure digests what you eat and allows you to eat all the good food you want. It radically cures stomach troubles.

THE TASMANIANS.

Futile Efforts by the English to Prevent Their Extirpation.

There was an interesting description of the last days of the Aborigine before a canoe was "improved away" by the English settlers in a lecture given by the Agent-General for Tasmania (Sir Philip Fysh) at the Whitehall Rooms last night. For the South Sea Islanders, he said, nature has provided, planting, cultivating, and ripening their food so that "they toil not neither do they spin nor gather into barns. How different it was in Tasmania! It could not in its primitive state support a large population. A fungus known as the bread fruit of the natives, and the kangaroo, wallaby, and wombat, and there, and fish, all to be had by the spear and net and the practice of amphibious habits; but the race was poor to physique, needed for and remorseless of infant female life. Each tribe was in perpetual war with the next, between whom a river or a mountain was the only line of demarcation. They were exposed to the inclemency of the weather, an animal skin being their only, if any, clothing; attacked by catarrh and pneumonia, the mortality must have been enormous. High, and judging by the paucity of numbers found by us there, they were a doomed race.

Great efforts for their protection were put forth. Proclamations of his Majesty were made by ruddy-painted pictures fastened upon trees intended to explain that white stock black the former would be hanged, and if black speared white the black would be hanged. Many were doled, but the villainies of bushrangers drew so the settlers a conscience without discrimination, causing an effort so early as 1839 to collect all the tribes. Government spent $30,000 and engaged 2,000 persons in a cordon stretched across the island, called the black line or Black War, but it was a complete failure, one man and one boy being the only captives, and they by accident.

Among very many settlers who were true friends of the black, one man stands out with a history which is a memorial of good deeds. The black man's name was G. A. Robinson, a bricklayer by trade, and a noble souled philanthropist; he trusted them, he and his wife lived with them for time, and by moral suasion he brought them through many a hairbreadth escape himself to camp around his home in Hobart. Their counsellor and protector, his ascendancy became complete. Truganani, a native woman, was companion to Robinson in his journeys among the blacks. She had lived long enough at peace with white people to respect their purposes. Mr. Bonwick writes of her: "Her mind was of no ordinary kind. Fertile in expedient, sagacious in council, courageous in difficulty, she had the wisdom and fascination of the serpent, the intrepidity and nobility of the royal ruler of the desert."

When collected, they were fed, clothed and protected in native quarters and medically comforted under the care of an Imperial Superintendent. The remnant of their number in 1835 was but 203 souls. From a mortality point such natural care seems to have been a failure, as their number in 1847 was reduced to 47. The last male native, called King Billy, became a white man among sailors, adopted their dress and succumbed to excesses in 1869. Truganani or Truganani lived to the fairly ripe old age for an aboriginal, of 66.
