THE WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondence.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 19, 1900.

President McKinley has announced that he will be unable to see any callers except those who have important business with him, until he completes his annual message to Congress, upon which he is now working. Only two weeks remain in which the message must be written and printed, and it will necessarily be quite a long document.

It is generally understood that Congress will provide for a Trans-Isthmian canal at this session, but whether it will be the Hepburn-Niagara Canal bill that passed the House at the last session and which was by resolution of the Senate made the special order for December 10, will depend upon the recommendations made by the President's message, which will be accompanied by the report of the Canal Commission upon the most feasible route, all things considered for the Canal. The preponderance of sentiment in Congress favors the Nicaraguan route and that the canal shall be constructed and controlled by the U. S. government.

When a man yells before he is hit, it is usually because he knows he deserves to be hit. That is about what is the matter with the Democrats who are howling about the intention of the Republicans at this session of Congress to pass a re-appointment bill reducing the representation of those Southern states which have disfranchised a large portion of their voters. They know that the Republicans in Congress have the power to do this thing and they fear it will be exercised, as it would be by the Democrats if the conditions were reversed. If the Republican leaders have any intention of putting such legislation through Congress, they are not giving any indication of it at this time, although a few of them have publicly said that it would be no more than just punishment for those states. It is not at all likely, however, that the punishment will be administered.

There is much anxiety in Washington because of the serious illness of Senator Davis, of Minn. In addition to friendship for him because of his many able qualities, there is a feeling that his counsel will be needed during the coming session of Congress. His long experience as a member of and as chairman of the Senate Committee on foreign relations has made him an authority on everything pertaining to the foreign relations of this government.

Attorney General Griggs is the only member of the Cabinet who has yet declined the President's pressing invitation to the entire Cabinet to remain their portfolios under his second administration, and his declination was based upon personal reasons—he is a poor man and feels that he cannot afford to remain in office where it costs him more to live than the salary he receives, when there is a lucrative law practice awaiting his attention. There are two other members of the Cabinet who are wavering between their personal desire to retire and their wish to please the President by remaining in office, while it is understood that the other four have decided to accept the President's invitation, although they have not formally done so.

The House Ways and Means Committee will at once begin considering the question of reporting a bill to reduce the internal revenue taxation, and Senator Aldrich, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Finance will call a meeting of that committee for the same purpose. Senator Aldrich said of the probable action of his committee: "It is impossible at this time to say whether we can accomplish anything in the way of a reduction. We hope to do so, but how much the amount will be or what direction we will take in securing the reduction, cannot be predicted until the Committee gets together and carefully reviews the information which is to be furnished by the Treasury Department." Secretary Gage estimates the surplus of the present fiscal year at $80,000,000, and that of the year beginning July 1, 1901, at $30,000,000, the latter being based upon a continuation of present internal revenue taxes.

BRYAN'S APOLOGIES.

"We made an honest fight upon an honest platform." So says Mr. Bryan in his short address of condolence to himself and to the rest of his party.

"Honesty is an unfortunate word to the use of the Democratic platform. The people held it for a platform of dishonesty and voted it down. Nor was Mr. Bryan's fight more honest. It was not honest for him to starve or evade the silver question after having been sixteen-to-one monomaniac for four years and after refusing to take the nomination if his hobby was not emphasized in the Chicago platform.

It was not honest for him to speak again and again of the limited coinage of silver under existing law as if it were the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

It was not honest for him to attack the Treaty of Paris and its results after it had been ratified by means of his efforts in its behalf with Democratic Senators.

It was not honest to accuse the Republicans of wishing to build forts near the great cities for the purpose of intimidating them. It was not honest to pretend that an army of American soldiers could be a menace to the liberty of their country.

It was not honest for him to give his hearers to understand that there is one law for the petty thief and another law for the big thief. It was not honest to assert that if he were elected president he would drive all the trusts out of business. It was not honest to seek to frighten parents into believing that their children would have no chance of an independent and a successful career on account of the trusts. It was not honest to deny and discredit the prosperous condition of the country.

In short, there was mighty little that was honest in Mr. Bryan's campaign speeches which were thoroughly saturated with demagoguery, misstatement and suggestions of falsehood. His assertions in 1900 were just as trustworthy as his prophecies in 1896. Much good nature has been wasted on Mr. Bryan's supposed honesty of conviction and purpose. His course this year has shown that he is only a shallow trimmer with an inexhaustible thirst for talk and office. The man is essentially hollow, artificial and theatrical. If he seems honest and sincere to himself, it is only because like many tragic comedians of private life, he is the dupe of his own acting. Besides, he has talked so long that words must have lost their definite shape and color for him. We have no wish to judge him severely, and reflection are pleas in statement for him; but when he talks about his "honest" fight, remembrance of his months of misrepresentations and evasion rises in every impractical mind.—N. Y. Sun.

REPENTANCE THE REMEDY.

From the creation onward hath man learned that for evil deeds there must be an atonement, and that remorse is the sure follower of sin. To time without end shall this remain as fixed as the laws of the Modes and Persians. Just as surely shall every wrong done to others, or to nature, pay its penalty as shall the stone that is cast into the air fall again to the earth. Even as the sons of man who have borne false witness shall feel impelled to sojourn in strange lands, and far from their kindred, yet also there shall their sins rise up against them, and the mark of Cain be recognized. Meanwhile the degenerate son who remaineth shall perambulate the crooked ways of his native heath, bewailing his past and present association with evil and ungodly men, while in agony tearing his hair he seeks consolation in application to himself of the text contained in Luke 9: 58. May we in all kindness suggest to him as well as to them that evil deeds repented and confessed in proper spirit are half atoned, and that this is the best method by far to quiet an uneasy and ever accusing conscience.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

To clean unvarnished black walnut rub it with a soft flannel cloth which has been wrung out of either sweet or sour milk.

When the children's stockings begin to get thin on the knees, put pieces of old stockings or of soft flannel on the wrong side and secure in place with fine stitches. Do this before holes come, and the hose will wear much longer.

In buying carpets it is excellent economy to cover the floors of two or three rooms with the same kind and pattern. Gradually the wear will reduce it to covering for two rooms and then for one, but it has lasted much longer than if the rooms had been covered differently.

HOW TO MAKE CABBAGE SALAD.

Shred a quarter of a cabbage as fine as the petals of achysanthemum. Remove the seeds from two sweet green peppers of medium size and slice one medium sized onion as thin as possible. Mix these ingredients together and lay them lightly in a salad bowl. Surround them with quarters of tomatoes. Pour a dressing over all composed of oil, vinegar salt and pepper, and serve.

HOW TO MAKE OAT MEAL FINGERS.

Make four ounces of oatmeal into a paste that is fairly stiff with two ounces of butter, a little salt and a gill of milk. Roll this out three-quarters of an inch thick and cut into fingers. Heat a frying pan, lay the fingers in and bake them, turning them to cook each side. If these are a re put into the oven, they will become like pie crust merely. Serve them very hot and crisp.

Some Census Facts.

The population of this country has increased over thirteen millions in the past ten years and the United States is now in the second rank among the world's great powers. In 1800 it stood eighth and at the bottom of the list in population. The census shows that there are in round numbers five million eight hundred thousand and separate farms in the United States and territories and about six hundred thousand manufacturing institutions, an increase in ten years of one hundred and fifty thousand plants. The increase of manufacturing in the West and South has been remarkable.

The center of population is in Indiana west of Columbus. In 1800 it was 23 miles east of Baltimore and has shifted almost due West at the rate of 40 to 60 miles each decade except from 1850 to 1860 when it moved West by north 81 miles.

A trifle less than one-fourth of the population of the whole country dwell in 150 cities having 25,000 inhabitants and over.

Rhode Island, the smallest of the states, leads in density of population, supporting 395 persons to the square mile. She has less than two acres of area to each inhabitant and in New York and Pennsylvania there are about four, Nevada, with an area more than twice as large as either of these states, has 1,600 acres to each inhabitant.

The C. E. Convention.

The fourteenth annual convention of the Pennsylvania Christian Endeavor Union which met in Philadelphia this week was largely attended by delegates. This is a sign that the organization has a vital power which is on the increase in its influence for good. The idea which was originated by Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., pastor of a church in Portland, Me., and which had an original membership of less than fifty has spread rapidly and with a fervent, potent, spiritual effort. In fifteen years the movement had extended to nearly every foreign country and missionary land, was endorsed by thirty-two Christian denominations, with over forty-three thousand societies organized and a membership of over two and a half millions, which has since greatly increased. These associations of young people endeavoring to up lift themselves spiritually have become truly universal, their members astonish, their councils and conventions are ecumenical and the organization represents visibly a practical union of Christianity which suggests the vast good which may be inherent in the united efforts of different sects working in harmony for a common end.

In Bankruptcy.

We clip from the Wayne Independent the twelvemonth following regarding a former resident of Delaware, now living in Wayne county:

Allen Hornbeck, merchant, at Winwood, by proceedings in the United States district court, has been declared an involuntary bankrupt. A meeting of the creditors was held before A. T. Searle, referee, on Monday for the purpose of filing claims and choosing a trustee. The liabilities were found to be about $6,500; assets about $2,000, consisting of stocks of goods in the Winwood store, Seth W. Powell, of Honesdale, was unanimously chosen trustee.

Allen Hornbeck's store at Winwood was broken into Friday night last and the safe blown open with dynamite. But little was missing.

THE RAMBLERS PICKINGS.

The population of Sussex county has increased 1 875 since the census of 1890 when it was 22,250. In 1900 it is 24,124.

Bryan only carried four counties in New Jersey, Hudson by 6,381, Hunterdon by 1,265, Sussex by 534, and Warren by 1,620 maj.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Percival and family, of Port Jervis, were guests of John McCarty at Raymondskill Sunday.

S. S. Smith, of Wartsboro, Sullivan county was in town last week.

The street lamp near Judge Klaers has been dark for some time. Those in charge of the extension of the water mains would confer a favor to the public by removing the loose stones.

Louis has promised to do better.

Henry is waiting for the supper Thomas was to provide. Send an invitation to the Press.

Ed. is also looking for the turkey Frank lost.

Miss Katie Beck went to New York Saturday.

Thanksgiving day is coming nearer, and the wise turkey will roast high.

Arthur Myers, of Montague, and Warren Chol spent several days lately near Dark swamp. I did not see the boys come back, consequently can not tell you what they got or rather didn't get.

Revel meetings are soon to begin in the M. E. church. A little shaking up won't hurt us.

Teams are kept busy drawing coal to keep some of our residents warm. By the way is it not about time to build the Delaware valley R. R.?

What is sadder than for a person to go to a property which a few years ago was considered one of the best kept up and the pride of the owner and to see such gone to wreck the former owner laid away to rest, and strangers in charge. It certainly can not be pleasant for those who one day were interested.

Tobacco in Law.

In a recent case in the United States Supreme Court involving the validity of a State law regulating the sale of cigarettes in which the question was whether cigarettes was an article of commerce, associate Justice Brown delivering the majority opinion holding that they are, said: "Whatever is an object of barter and sale is an article of commerce and must be so recognized. Tobacco has been such an article for 300 years. It has been made the subject of taxation, and indeed has become more widely scattered than any other vegetable. Probably no other vegetable has contributed so much to the comfort and solace of the human race." He also noticed the claim that cigarettes are an especially harmful form of tobacco, and while conceding that this might be the case, remarked that the claim was of comparatively recent origin, but they are as much a subject of State regulation as is liquor. The decision sustained the Tennessee law.
