HORTICULTURE EXHIBIT.
Will Be One of the Principal Features of the Exposition.

Horticulture, viticulture and floriculture are linked together in one grand scheme. In the midst of a country of orchards and vineyards the Pan-American Exposition will have abundant material close at hand and of the finest quality from which to make an exhibit worthy of the great event. The extensive floral decorations of the grounds constitute a rich display in horticulture, and several acres, including hundreds of beds, are devoted to the exhibits made by leading florists of the country. Flowers in profusion will welcome the earliest visitors and breathe out their fragrance and display their incomparable beauty the season through. Thousands of trees and shrubs flourish throughout the grounds. Double rows of thirty trees surround the principal buildings. Foliage and flowers there will be in great profusion. In the horticultural embellishment of the grounds the Pan-American will far surpass the efforts of all former exhibitions.

In the handsome and commodious Horticultural Building all the popular fruits of the different countries represented in the Pan-American Exposition will be displayed. With a suitable refrigerating room upon the grounds, it will be possible for the management to make a daily fresh display of fruit. Throughout the term of the Exposition, when certain fruits are at their best, special displays will be made of certain varieties. The exhibit from southern California will be particularly large, and New York and other states will be represented handsomely. Bottled productions will also have a place here, the wine growers of the Chautauque, central New York and Hudson river regions having applied for space for extensive exhibits. The opportunity for a timely display of choice native fruits will be improved. Dried and preserved fruits will be exhibited here. Articles and appliances used in horticulture will also be shown in this division.

The exhibits of nursery stock, including orchard and ornamental trees, shrubs and evergreens, will be unpretentiously among the finest, if not the finest, ever made. The most prominent nurserymen in the country have interested themselves and will aim to outdo any former show of the kind. No less interest is taken by the leading florists, who are arranging exceptionally fine displays. Many large beds of flowers were planted some months ago, and they will aid in beautifying the scene from the early days of the Exposition.

MARK BISHOP.

SMALLEST OF THEIR KIND.
The Dwarf Cattle of Celebes Are No Larger Than Ordinary Fall-Grown Sheep.

Celebes had the distinction of being the home of the smallest living representative of the wild cattle, or indeed, of the wild cattle of any period of the earth's history, for no equally diminutive fossil member of the group appears to be known to science. An idea of the extremely diminutive proportions of the animal is respectively called by the inhabitants of Celebes and the Malays, may be gained when it is stated that its height at the shoulder is only about three feet three inches, whereas that of the great Indian wild ox, or gaur, is at least six feet four inches, and many, according to some writers, reach as much as seven feet. In fact, the animal is really not much, if at all, larger than a well-grown South Down sheep and scarcely exceeds in this respect the little domesticated Spaniel cattle shown a few years ago at the Indian exhibition held at Earl's Court, says Knowledge.

The animal has many of the characteristics of the large Indian buffalo, but its horns are relatively shorter, less curved and more upright. In this, as well as in certain other respects, it is more like the young than the adult of the last named species, and as young animals frequently show ancestral features which are gradually lost as maturity is approached it would be a natural supposition that the animal is a primitive type of buffalo.

TELEPHONE NUMBERS.
Heavy Mileage Rates Are Sometimes Paid to Retain an Old "Hello" Address.

"Telephone numbers have an actual money value," said an officer of the American Bell Telephone company reports the New York Mail and Express. "The user who has a number sound, but if you think for a moment of the advantage a business house derives from having its location well known, the thing seems only natural."

"In the course of time people's minds begin to associate a firm with its telephone number, and if, when they start to call up an old friend, they find him masquerading under a new number, it is as much of a shock as if they had called at a house with whom they were in the habit of doing business and found it had moved away. It all comes under the legal head of 'good will,' a very elusive commodity, but one which has its market value."

"So much is this fact appreciated by some of our old patrons that they are willing to pay heavy mileage if they move away from the neighborhood of their exchange in order to retain their old telephone address. Many important houses have followed the northward trend of business in the last few years, and there are several cases of a firm's office address being in the up-town district, while its telephone number remains So and so, Cortlandt or Broad. The firm's line to the exchange may be several miles long."

THE MAINE BUILDING.
The resources of the State of Maine will be exhibited at the Pan-American Exposition, and summer in a building at once unique and appropriate. It will be circular in form, with projecting entrance, and the decorations will be typical of things in the Pine Tree State. The building will challenge the attention and win the admiration of every visitor to the Exposition.

ELECTRIC SCIENCE.
Feature of Great Importance at the Pan-American.

Electricity and electrical appliances are to receive such attention as to make this one feature of the Pan-American Exposition of the greatest importance in the history of electrical development. In addition to the spectacular use of electricity in illuminating buildings, towers, courts and fountains there will be very important demonstrations of the application of the force to many new purposes. Among them will be wireless telegraphy, the X rays, the electromobile, telegraphy and moving trains by induction, the improvements in the electric light and telephone. The wonderful labor saving qualities of electricity have revolutionized the production of many articles of merchandise within the past decade. This phase of employment of the electric fluid will form a most pleasant study for those who are interested in the newest of the sciences, and such a study as will only be possible at the Exposition. The development of electric power will be illustrated in a comprehensive manner.

MINERALS AT THE PAN-AMERICAN.
Minerals will be fully represented, comprising every production, both useful and ornamental, mined from the earth. All parts of the United States and every country of South and Central America, Canada, Mexico, and the islands of the sea will contribute specimens for the exhibit. All kinds of machinery used in manipulating ores will be exhibited. The great advantages that the Americas have over the rest of the world in the wealth of their minerals in connection with climate conditions, accessibility, etc., will be clearly illustrated. While the exhibit will be under the auspices of the various Governments, many individuals and mining companies will be represented by individual displays, representing their special interests.

MEXICAN APPOINTMENT.
The Mexican ministry of fomento (encouragement) has appointed as Mexican representative of the Pan-American Exposition Engineer Alberto R. Nuncio, who was until his appointment chief of the second section in the aforementioned ministry.

AMERICAN COUNSPURCHERS IN AFRICA.
It is stated that 600 "counspurchers" of Nebraska, Wyoming and Colorado were included in Canada's volunteers for the front in South Africa.

"I'm getting along," said Mr. Cumrox. "I'm progressing slowly but surely."

"In what?"

"Culture." I've been traveling around with Mrs. C.—and the girls until I'm getting right refined. But there's one thing I don't think I'll achieve. I don't believe I'll ever be able to go into an antique store and tell the difference between bric-a-brac and junk."—Washington Star.

Her Face Showed It.
"Good night, papa," said the sweet young girl.

"Huh!" granted the old man, "that young fellow's gone, eh? I wouldn't have anything to do with him, dear. He's a conceited dude."

"Why, pa, you never even saw him. Why do you say that?"

"Because if he wasn't he wouldn't use black cosmetic on the thing he calls a mustache."—Philadelphia Press.

The Reason Why.
"So you're going to be married again? To whom?"

"To my late wife's sister."

"Neither?"

"Then why do you marry her?"

"To tell the truth, it's because I want only one mother-in-law!"—Helene West.

To Get It On His Hands.
"Here's five cents," said the sharp-featured woman. "You'll go and spend it for whisky. You know you will."

"Madam," responded Tufford Knutt, lifting his weather-beaten remains of a hat with impressive dignity, "I ask you not to be so hasty. Of the kind, I'm going to spend it for having my hands manicured."—Chicago Tribune.

The Subject Avouched Her.

"She isn't?" She kept me until after 11 o'clock and never gave me a chance to get in a word edgewise."

"What was she talking about?"

"About the chances she had to get married before she met Jim."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Wasting of the Honeycomb.
"What did you ever see in me to induce you to marry me?" she asked.

"Nothing," he replied.

"What!" she cried indignantly.

"Oh, I can't say fault," he replied soothingly. "I evidently had visions, and I ought to have consulted an oculist at the time."—Chicago Post.

PRAIRIE DOGS ALL GOING.

The Descriptive Rodents Have Had Their Day on the Plains of the Far West.

Passengers who have ridden the better part of a day through western Nebraska and eastern Colorado will remember the prairie dog. He is numerous in that section of the country. He lives in villages, and the villages are as close together as the villages of certain parts of Europe.

But the prairie dog one had his day. The agricultural department says he must go. Mr. Wilson has decided that the dogs kill the grass and ruin good grazing land. "Tama Jim" has little of the love of picturesque in his make-up. He is eminently practical and his philanthropy is of the type which seeks to make two blades of grass grow instead of one. Therefore he proposes to relegate the prairie dog to the pleasure boat and to the stuffed specimens of the museum along with the buffalo, says the Des Moines News.

Mr. Wilson's chemists have discovered a mixture which will make whole villages fight for the first bite, but which at the last bite kills a serpent and stings like an adder. Under its influence the hate that knows no prairie dog will know it no more for ever. The frisky, nervous, barking bit of beast will join the innumerable caravan of prairie dogs who have gone before.

There will be more grass when the prairie dog is gone, and therefore more cattle. There will be less breeding of the legs of cowboys' ponies and the rattlemake will live alone in the hole until the summons comes to him also.

THROUGH THE HOLY LAND.
The Train Moves Slowly, as if Laid Disturb Its Haunted Shades and Phantoms.

There is no rush in the orient; the train moves slowly through Holy Land as if laid to disturb the shades and phantoms haunting the Land of Promise, writes Mrs. Lew Wallace of "Ben Hur" in "The Day" in the Home Journal. Deep emotion seizes us. The Jaffa gate is the scene of much traffic carried on in various languages. We hear names of start far-reaching associations in remote past. We see costumes and Absalom, the beautiful, the best of worst men in soft crimson, blue robes, beggars, lepers; Chief of the motley swarm is the unclean Arab, stately as Saul, silent in his turgid garments, as though the frown of the desert had passed into soul, unmoved at sight of the first machine come to break his civilization. Job was such a one—sheik of the city with lordly bearing, as befits a leader of horsemen with spears at the owner of camels, greatest of men of the east. Does this sound reverent? Well, we are nearing a hill where David set his throne; slow wheels turn slower, a shriek, jerk, stop. The turbanned brakeman calls, "Mount Zion—a rush feeling, a thrill that can come but once we lift our eyes to the city of our Lot whether in the body or out of the body I cannot tell.

LONELY LIVES OF HERDERS
Australian Cattle Tenders Pass Monotonous Existence in the Bush.

Not even its greatest admirer could call the Australian bush beautiful. It is a somber, sage-colored wild of eucalyptus forest, interspersed with arid tracks of thorn and spinifex. There says the Newcastle Chronicle. At intervals you come across a quiet clearing, with its little community human beings. Deeper still in the solitude, aloof and almost lost, lie the shepherds and bushmen, each Alexander Selkirk marooned in a greasy waste of grass or forest. Once a man they are visited and their rations carried to them, but for the rest they live in solitary exile, the only companions their sheep, cattle and dogs. Cut from human intercourse, they almost lose their faculty of speech, and become witless as their sheep or cattle. At short holiday that is allowed them, it is too probable that they hand in the "cheque" for the half-year's wages of the proprietor of the shanty known as the "Bush hotel," and stay there, drink it out.

POOR LO TURNED TO STONE
Petritied Body of an Indian Found in a Mound on an Ohio Farm.

In an old Indian mound near Cosverville, O., relic hunters have found an Indian's body that had turned to solid stone. The mound is located on the farm of Thomas James, and bone arrowheads and other relics are plentiful there, and some time ago the skeletons which were found there crumbled to dust on exposure to the air. The last find of the petrified Indian was made about six feet beneath the surface of the mound. Their shock struck something hard and immovable and investigation showed it to be the form of a man's face. The entire form of the Indian was soon brought to view, but aid had to be secured before it could be removed. It was a fine specimen of an Indian, over six feet tall. His features are comely and his hands small and shapely. The muscles of his arms and legs stand out in bold relief, as though carved by the hand of man, and even the wrinkles in the wrist are discernible. The relic is now at the home of Mr. James and arrangements have been made for placing it in a museum.
