HALIFAX, NOVA SCOTIA.

Fees to Pass from Control of British Military Authorities into a Naval Station.

Halifax will soon cease to be a military station and pass exclusively under the control of the British admiralty. This statement was lately made in official quarters, says the Ottawa (Ont.) Citizen.

Halifax has been a military station since 1749, and it is now proposed to make the city one of the greatest naval stations in the world. In addition to the men of the fleet there will be a reserve consisting of about 2,000 soldiers and marines, of which 600 will be marine artillerymen. This naval reserve force will remain here. Information states also that royal engineers will be retained and continue under and in charge of the submarine department. The royal marine artillery belonging to the reserve force will be required to man the forts, and will, when necessary, be assisted by sailors. It is the intention to station in Halifax a regiment known as the royal garrison regiment. This will be recruited from time-expired men, who will be required to serve four years before going on regular service. The garrison will, of course, be under command of the admiralty, and the British admiral will replace the army general, who has hitherto commanded the station.

It is also stated that the works at Esplanade will also be transferred wholly to the admiralty department. A military officer stated in conversation the other morning that he would not be surprised should an announcement be made that the imperial government had decided to construct and operate a factory near Halifax for the manufacture of small arms and ammunition.

CHINESE PEANUTS.

They Are No Longer But the American "Goober" Prepared by the Celestials.

The trans-American railways have their agents in all parts of the world—commercial agents, industrial agents, car service agents and oriental agents, as well as the regular assortment and variety of freight and passenger agents. The oriental agent of the Great Northern railway in this city, says the New York Press, is Mr. Moy Wu Yen, a highly interesting Chinaman, who carries in his pockets a hamful of Chinese peanuts with which, from time to time, he regales his friends. In the midst of business he suddenly conceals his hand beneath his blouse and asks: "Will you try a Chinese peanut?" The hand, soft as that of a gentle maiden, reappears with the nut, and you are tempted. You yield with pleasure, accepting one. It resembles the native "goober," which ex-Gov. Campbell failed to corner, but is the most delicious morsel in the nut shape that you ever tasted.

Mr. Moy laughingly tells you, when you ask where more nuts can be had, that they are not Chinese peanuts at all, but the familiar old Virginia "goober" prepared in the Chinese fashion. "We take the raw nut," he explains, "and dry it perfectly in the sun, leaving it many days on the housetop. Then we soak it in salt water—brine, you call it—for three days, after which we again dry it thoroughly. This may take a week. Then we put it in an oven in a pan of very hot sand, and continually stir until it is cooked well done. That is all. Nothing could be more simple. The peanuts the Italians roast in their sheet-iron cylinders—no Chinaman would touch one! We say Chinese peanuts to have fun with our friends. There are no Chinese peanuts."

Thrive on it.

Uncle Josh—Mean to tell me that when I sit in a draft of gold, that cold is caused by microbes?

Uncle Miles—Of course! It's caused by microbes that like to sit in a draft.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under the Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their nuzzles have almost to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when fully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve RAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

Send prepaid to any address in the United States or C. Mads on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. B 278, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2830 and 2832 Market Street, Philadelphia.

LIES OF NINE LIVES.

Fabulous Tales About Snakes That Charm and Thrill of England Arrangements.

A lie that nothing seems able to kill is the fable of the snake fascinating its prey. It is always bobbing up serenely. Travelers, otherwise truthful, think it necessary to put it in their books; novelists use it in all good faith, and it appears in the pages of every sixth month, says the Cincinnati Enquirer.

The whole yarn is a complete myth. No snake has any power of fascination; not even a boa constrictor. Snakes lie in wait for their prey, pounce on it and make a meal of it, without any frills or etiquette, but nothing can kill the story. A companion lie that generally goes with it is the one about the serpent licking his prey all over before swallowing it; but since the notion was started by a traveler with a vivid imagination it has reappeared regularly, and endless books on zoology have copied it as truth.

The great British hated-breath story is that the enormous wealth in the Bank of England storerooms is sunk under water every night, so as to be secure against theft. A huge tank is said to lie under a sort of platform that holds the heavy millions, and at the touch of a button the whole affair lowers itself into the tank, and is covered by about nine feet of water. This is absolutely bosh; but nothing seems able to kill the fable. It resulted originally from the suggestion of a mad inventor "Frank" a long time ago, when ideas for a security of Britain's wealth were being discussed. The fact is, the whole bank building is built "thief-proof," and all night a body of soldiers patrol the passages and corridors. But the submerged-gold idea is still in the best of health.

HE WAS A SOCIAL LION.

But the Girls Were Disillusioned When They Learned He Was a Detective.

At a fashionable wedding reception recently given in this city the attention of a couple of girls was attracted to a rather fine-looking man whose prematurely gray hair and clear-cut features combined in giving him a distinguished appearance. "I see him at nearly every large wedding I go to," said one. "I wonder who he can be. I've asked lots of people and nobody seems to know. Yet he seems to be invited everywhere." "Yes, I've noticed him, too," said the other girl. "While he apparently goes to all the big weddings, he doesn't seem to know anybody or at least he never seems to be talking to anybody. He's such an interesting-looking man, too. I'd love to meet him. He looks like a man who had lived and—suffered."

A young man standing near, who couldn't help overhearing this conversation, laughed. "Perhaps I can throw some light upon the identity of your mysterious hero," he said. "Do you know him?" "Yes, I know the girl in the same breath. 'Well, I can't say that I exactly know him," replied the young man, "but I know who he is. He's a private detective. Perhaps you have noticed that he never strays far away from the table on which the gifts are displayed. That's what he's there for—to watch them. You know there are a lot of highwaymen in it."

"Let's go downstairs and get some refreshment," interrupted one of the girls.

FRANCE CELTIC OR LATIN?

Argument of an Englishman That Appears to Admit of No Disputation.

An Englishman, writing to the editor of London Spectator, says: "In connection with the recent visit of the man fleet to Toulon there have been many references to the European press to a renewal of the entente cordiale between two 'Latin' nations. It may be of some interest to inquire in what sense the term 'Latin' can be correctly applied to the French, whom, almost in the same breath, many people are apt to describe as a 'Celtic' people. One thing surely is certain, that in blood the French cannot be at the same time both 'Latin' and 'Celtic.' Yet the inconsistency does not seem to strike people.

"I think that, although outside Provence the French have little or no Latin—i. e., Italian—blood in their veins, the explanation of their being described as 'Latin' race lies to be found in the fact that the language and civilization are both Latin. It seems no longer permissible to hold that the French are mainly 'Celtic' in blood; the view being now generally accepted that the bulk of the population in France is of a pre-Celtic, and probably of Iberian or Ligurian, stock. And this view seems to hold good also of Ireland and Wales."

A Thermometer Eight Miles Up.

The exploration of the air by means of balloons carrying self-registering instruments is pursued with much vigor in Europe. On February 7 there were simultaneous ascents from many points, extending from France to Austria and Russia. One unmanned balloon near Paris reached an elevation of 41,650 feet, not much short of eight miles. The temperature of the air at that height, as shown by a self-registering thermometer, was 67 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit. Another balloon near Berlin found the same temperature at an elevation 10,000 feet less. These experiments are expected to throw much light on the laws of storms and of atmospheric circulation.

Enlightened in the Hoop.

On the floor lay the broken remnants of half a dozen soup plates, a lot of china cups and saucers, a cream pitcher, a gravy bowl, several glass goblets, a covered dish and a formidable array of plates and sauce dishes, all of which the light-running domestic had been carrying in a huge dishpan.

"How did you do it, Nora?" asked the professor, whom the noise had drawn to the kitchen.

"I tripped and fell, sir," tearfully answered Nora.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxious Doses, No Weakening of the Nerves, A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Lignor Habit.

It is generally known and understood that Drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquor, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by the wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but a specific for this disease only, so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and so many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deceived by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time.

"HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effective than others costing $5 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Send prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. B 278, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2830 and 2832 Market Street, Philadelphia. All correspondence strictly confidential.

COST OF PUTTING OUT FIRES.

New York City Spends Most Money for This, and of Course Does It Best.

The cost of the New York city fire department, the efficiency of which is unchallenged, is $3,500,000 and it is a somewhat curious circumstance that the increased cost of the department, made necessary by Albany legislation for the most part, has been since consolidation almost exactly $100,000 a year. In 1898 the department cost $3,300,000. In 1899 it was $3,300,000. In 1900 it was $3,400,000, and the appropriation for this year is $3,500,000, the demands upon the department increasing, of course, as the population in the city enlarges, and fires multiply, says the Sun.

Chicago, which has suffered more severely from a great conflagration than any other large American city, expends $1,500,000 a year for the maintenance of its fire department, and Boston, which has suffered severely in the same direction, though very much less populous and a much more compact city than Chicago, expends $1,200,000. In fact, it has come to be accepted as an axiom among fire department officials that those cities which have suffered most from fires are the ones which make the most liberal provision for their departments, while those cities which have not suffered seriously do not provide much for fire protection.

Southern cities generally spend little on their fire service, and it has been found generally that the ratio of cost increases as the population becomes more compact. In respect to efficiency in responding to fire alarms some western cities, notably Kansas City, have made good records, but none of them compares favorably with New York either for speed or efficiency.

PERSONAL AND LITERARY.

Gen. William Bull Franklin, Gen. Samuel G. French and Rev. Father Dehon are the sole survivors of Gen. Grant's class—that of '43—at West Point.

In Germany 84,792 books were published in 1900, an increase over 1898 of 1,075. The largest increase was in educational works, the smallest in books on war and military matters.

The sale of a single Poe book for $1,500 recalls the fact that the poet's mother-in-law, during his life, bitterly wrote to a friend that "there was not enough money in the house to buy a cup of tea."

Biles Carman, the poet, writes at all times and in all places, as the mood moves him. Most of his verses first sees the light on scraps of paper or scraps of paper or is written in an almost illegible hand on the backs of envelopes.

Robert C. Winthrop, Jr., has given Bowdoin college some interesting relics of the first patron, James Bowdoin, including an old dress suit of black velvet, lined with white satin. There is also an old dagger and a pair of dueling pistols.

Levi P. Morton is seeking to be gradually relieved of the cares of business. The ex-governor and ex-vice president is 77 years old, and besides his advanced age an intention to spend considerable time abroad is a reason for desiring to lessen his business responsibilities.

It is regarded as somewhat singular that neither of Richard Croker's sons has taken to the turf, or even to Deacon Highboul (drawn for jury duty)—I won't have no scruples in that man's case. He cheated me on a horse trade once.—N. Y. Weekly.

Edison, who is quite deaf, was recently visited by an ear specialist who offered to cure him. "What?" exclaimed the wizard of electricity, "and give up a great advantage I have over you fellows? Why, I need my deafness in my business, because no matter how much noise may be in my neighborhood it does not annoy me or distract my attention from work. Can my deafness? Not much—at least not until I am too old to work."
