CORRESPONDENCE.

SANDYSTON.

After being away nearly a month I will try and pick up a few items that may interest your readers.
But being pretty well used up on my trip, will not write much.

The twin coils of Francis Simpson attract a good deal of attention and Cap. says he will try and cap both. They are looking fine so far.

Notice that the strip of road from the Layton school grounds leading to the village has been gravelled and bids fair to last a long time without repairs. If more our roads were repaired as this has been we would soon have fine roads, which would be a credit to the town.

During the absence of Dr. Hughes his place is being filled by Dr. Roo of Branchville, N. J. The Doctor's kindly way with patients gives great satisfaction and he is liked very much.

Miss Kate Kintner has been very ill for some time and I am sorry to say she is not improving as much as her friends would desire.

Mrs. Sue D. Myers is still pretty sick, but is much better than she was. It will be some time before she can get about, as her recovery is very slow.

It is with sadness that I announce the death of Isaac V. Conson of Coleville. Mr. Conson and I have been surveyors of the Reading Insurance company for a great many years. We attended the annual meetings together in October of each year, and he and I always roomed together. Of a social disposition, and few stood higher than Mr. C., and his sterling good qualities endared him to all. A pure Christian has gone to his reward.

We are having some pretty hot weather. Saturday and Sunday the mercury reached 94 degrees and had it not been for the light breeze stirring the heat would almost be unbearable. The dry weather is affecting vegetation especially in gardens and a rain would come very good at this time.

It does seem strange to me that our Board of Education should reject the applications of such teachers as W. C. Hursh, Charles Cortright and Miss Ramage. No vote was taken on the applications of the three named, and yet it is the rule of the Board to favor the teacher preferred by the trustee of the school applied for. The first named teacher was favored by the local trustee of two schools he applied for and yet a member of the board succeeded in having those schools declared vacant, merely on personal grounds.
As the teacher referred to, I think it unjust to allow personal matters to enter school matters. Competency is not regarded, only lay the teacher on the shelf, so to speak, to gratify the feeling of a member of the board.

cently.

How Judicious and Inexpensive Advertisements Can Be Made to Pay by Using a Selected Medium.

The Brooklyn Daily Eagle is the ideal Resort medium. It reaches the people you want to reach. Its circulation is the largest in Brooklyn, and goes into the best homes in the entire City of New York. Its name stands for excellence, quality, fairness and an unparalleled advertising reputation. Its resort rates are equitable; its monthly rate so low that you can afford to keep before the public every day.

The Eagle maintains two free Information Bureaus for Resorts—one in Brooklyn and one in the heart of the shopping district of Manhattan.
They distribute your circulars, tell visitors about your house, and in every way further your interests.
An advertisement in the Eagle, sup-

DINGMAN'S FERRY.

This is excessively hot weather, anyway!

There was a festival in the Maple Orchard here on the 4th for the benefit of the M. E. church.

Thomas B. Pitney and Miss Marjaret Drake, daughter of Stephen Drake, were married in the Dingman M. E. church on Sunday, 23d ult.
Mr. Pitney began housekeeping in Dingman's, and that night the Calathompson band gave him and Mrs. Pitney a serenade which, if not very musical, had the merit of being loud enough.

Arthur W. Emery, of this place, is at present quite sick at the home of his sister, Mrs. Emily Downs.

Ada, daughter of John V. Brodhead, formerly of Lebanon, but for several years of Kimball county, Nebraska, is in Delaware township on a visit to her grandparents, Day-id Brodhead and wife. Miss Ada is but twenty years old, but had the nerve and self-possession to make her way eastward for about fourteen hundred miles, all alone. She is a teacher by profession.

William F. Sulley, we are sorry to learn, is quite sick. However, Will's many friends hope to soon see him around among us again.

William Dusenberry has had a neat and picturesque addition built to the store up town in which lovers of ice cream can sit in the cool afternoon shade and enjoy the dish they relish.

Not Attractive.

Mrs. De Good—Why aren't you going to church?
Mr. De Good—Last Sunday the roof leaked, and three or four drops went down my back.
Mrs. De Good—The roof has been repaired since then.
Mr. De Good—Huh! Then they'll be wanting money to pay for the repairs.

TRAMP IS GRATEFUL.

Left a Snug Little Sum in Cash to His Benefactor.

An Instance in Which Charity Found a Quick and Generous Reward—Old Man's Parcel Contained Fat Bank Notes.

Mrs. Emma Cargill, of Omaha, entertained an angel unawares.
Prompted by sympathy, she gave food and shelter to a supposed tramp the other day, and when, a week later, he died in her house, she found herself sole beneficiary of his last will, which meant a snug sum in cash—more than she could have made by keeping boarders in ten years.

An oral will is not valid under the Nebraska statutes, but thus far there have been no rival heirs to contest her claim, and the present indications are that she will be left in undisputed possession of her windfall.

One evening during the recent cold spell a poor wanderer, bent under the burden of his years, called at Mrs.
Cargill's home and asked for a bed. He was weak and sick, and his voice trembled as he said:
"I have been trying all day to find shelter, and they all turn me away, because they think I've got the small-pox."

As there was a peculiar rash on the stranger's face, Mrs. Cargill could scarcely believe this.
"And I am ill," he continued. "God will reward you, my good woman."

Having nothing but the stranger's word that his ailment was not small-pox, Mrs. Cargill took him in, gave him a bed on the lounge and such light nourishment as he was able to take.
Then he handed her a parcel wrapped in a soiled newspaper and tied with a greasy string. It looked much like a package of old letters.

"Keep this until I get well," he said,
"and if I never get well—if I should die—keep it always."

This was the stranger's will.
Placing the package on a window sill, the incident, for the time being, passed from her mind.

During the next few days the patient spoke but little, but Mrs. Cargill tak-

MRS. CARGILL REPRIENDED HIM.

aged to glean from him a few facts.
She learned that his name was J. W.
Myers and that he was 76 years old.
He had never married. From his brothers and sisters, of whom he had six at the time he left Connecticut, he had not heard in 32 years, and he believed they were dead. During his early manhood he had been wild and later had kept much to himself, having lived for the last five years the life of a recluse on his homestead near Lamar, Ia. When sickness came he converted his property into money and started for the city, intending to go to a hospital, but observing that his malady was likely to be mistaken for small-pox he altered his plans. He dreaded the pesthouse, he said. He wanted to "die like a Christian," so avoided the authorities and made a house-to-house canvass in quest of a Good Samaritan, whom he at last found in the person of Mrs. Cargill.

On the seventh day after his arrival at the Cargill home J. W. Myers died.
Mrs. Cargill notified the corner, and while she was gathering his effects preparatory to a removal of the body she chanced upon the greasy package on the window sill.

She tore it open with languid interest, which soon gave way to a thrill of excitement for the parcel contained $1,000 in treasury notes—100 ten-dollar bills.

Out of this sum she paid the old man's doctor bills and funeral expenses and the remainder she has deposited in a bank. She says she hopes no heirs will present themselves to claim it, as she wants to use it in the education of her little daughter, eight years old, who has displayed considerable talent in music.

His Honor Cracks a Joke.

A doctor in Celerinae, Ireland, was used for damages for the death of a valuable horse he had treated. It was shown that he had administered to the animal 12 grains of some powerful drug, and the plaintiff insisted that the medicine had caused death. The doctor declared that he had frequently given eight grains to a man, and that four grains more were not too much for a horse. The judge asked:
"Wouldn't 12 grains kill the devil himself if he swallowed them?" "I don't know, my lord," replied the doctor; "I never had him for a patient." "That's evidently true, doctor," responded the judge, "for the old boy is still alive."

Pensioners for Railway Employees.
The Pennsylvania railroad last year paid nearly $250,000 in pensions to 1,293 retired employees, nine-tenths of whom are over 70 years of age.
The number of pensioners who died during the year was 102.

It's a Safe Bet.

"Here's a story of an Ohio girl who bet that she could win a husband by advertising, and she won the bet."
"Well, in that connection, there's a little bet that I would be glad to make."

"What is it?"
"Why, I'd like to bet—and I'd give odds, too—that inside of 30 days she'd be willing to pay double the regular advertising rates if she could lose him the way she won him."—Chicago Post.
