UNCLE SAM AND JOHN BULL.

The New York Journal in a recent issue published two contrasting pictures, one being the picture of Uncle Sam, who was described as "the man with all the money," the other being the picture of John Bull, who was designated as "the man who needs the money." Fifty years ago, when Richmond Cohen won his great victory for Free-Trade in England, he predicted that before the end of the century Free-Trade would be triumphant throughout the world. If he could look at these two end-of-the-century pictures, the one of the man with all the money representing the country which has stood, with but a few temporary lapses from economic sanity, for the system of Protective Tariff; the one of the man who needs the money representing his own Free-Trade England, which has remained true to his own Free-Trade teachings of half a century ago, he would need no further explanation of the fact of his predictions having proved wholly unfulfilled, and of the fact that Free-Trade, instead of being triumphant throughout the world at the end of the nineteenth century, has come more and more into disrepute as the years have gone on. The pictures tell the story. Our Protective Tariff has filled our treasury to overflowing and has made the world our debtor. Free-Trade, on the other hand, has impoverished Great Britain, which was the wealthiest nation in the world, and has made the payment of amounts due from British buyers to American sellers a serious problem to the British capitalist.

NO CHANCE FOR A QUARREL.

Senator Jones of Arkansas, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, predicts that the Babcock bill to repeal the Tariff as a remedy for trusts will never be reported from the Ways and Means Committee. Here is a case where the wish is not father to the thought. Far from it. Nothing would please Senator Jones and the party of Populists and Free-Traders more than to see the Republicans in a quarrel over Tariff revision. They will not see it. There is no earthly prospect that any measure embodying the mischievous provisions of the Babcock bill will be reported from the House Committee on Ways and Means of the Fifty-seventh Congress. It is extremely doubtful whether the bill be again introduced by Mr. Babcock or by any Republican. Some Democrat may receive the project. If so, it will die the death. But there isn't going to be any Republican quarrel over it.

THE CHURCH COLUMN.

Preaching at Union next Sabbath afternoon.

Mr. Ogden, the cornetist of the Bluff House orchestra, will play for us next Sabbath morning.

A lawn party will be held on the church lawn next Thursday evening, July 18th. Ice cream, cake and home made candy will be for sale.

The topic for the morning sermon is, "Religious Expansion as Seen in the Life of St. Paul." In the evening we will begin a series of character sketches on the "Sinners of the Bible." Pilate will be treated next Sabbath evening. "The Saints of the Bible" will be treated during August on Sabbath evenings.

Our congregation last Sabbath morning was the largest morning congregation during the present pastorate. We are glad to note the faithfulness of our own people, and are just as glad to welcome strangers. "I was glad when they said unto me let us go into the house of the Lord."

What about the Fourth? The following very pleasing things are worthy our notice: The parade had dignity, and convinced the on-lookers that the firemen meant to make the day one of pleasure and not one of "tomfoolery." The refreshing drink furnished by our chief brought out three cheers, in which every man in the line was glad to participate. I believe that that lemonade gave more satisfaction to the men in general than any saloon-furnished intoxicating grog that could be found. The afternoon was quiet and full of pleasure at the association grounds. It was a source of satisfaction to see the good feeling among our town boys though defeated in the ball game. I have a higher regard for Milford, and especially for the men of Milford, than ever before. There is a large amount of genuine manhood here and it is a cherished hope of the writer that it may soon be marshaled against evil in and under the direction of the Christian church.

Keep in mind the fair August 8th. Any of our friends who care to contribute articles for the fair will find Mrs. Shearer, the president, glad to receive them.

Rev. C. E. SCUDDER.

White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty of Lexington, Ky., when they saw he was turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful Stomach and Liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves its matchless merit for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. Only 50c. Sold by all druggists.

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE FOR WHISKERS

DON'T WAIT. If you know how SCOTT'S EMULSION would build you up, increase your weight, strengthen your weak throat and lungs and put you in condition for next winter, you would begin to take it now.

SANDYSTON.

The heavy rains in May delayed corn planting much later than usual, and a good deal of it was planted in June and predilections were made that the stand would not reach the 4th of July mark, that of being knee high on that date, but a majority reached the mark and the prospects of a good crop are very bright.

The railroad from Stroudsburg to Bushkill is reported to have made such progress in building that it is asserted that cars will be running very soon. It is to be hoped that the Erie and D. L. & W., being under the same management, will connect their roads by extending the road on to Port Jervis. It would be of great benefit to the three towns lying in this valley, and Port Jervis would command the trade that now goes to Branchville and Newton.

I notice that foreign journals are speaking harshly of American locomotives, from a feeling of jealousy I presume. If their machines can do any better than was done on the Hudson River R. R. on Thursday last, let them sing it. The run from Albany to New York, 143 miles, was made in 143 minutes, including slow-downs for water and passing through towns, an average of better than 70 miles an hour. Certainly that is fast enough for anybody.

The festival at Hainesville on July 4th was well attended and the net sum of sixty-six dollars was taken in. The best of feeling prevailed, and all had a good time. Quite a number attended the celebration at Milford from this place.

I am glad to note that the Silver Spring creamery is gaining patrons, and the management is giving satisfaction. The success of the creamery is assured, but if many of its patrons would add to their dairies and others not yet taking their milk there would do so, it would make the institution a paying one. The cream from the Montague creamery is being brought to this one, but how long this may continue I did not learn.

The Branchville mail does not get here in time to connect with the Flatbrookville route. The Branchville mail leaves that place for Layton at 1 p. m., while the leaving time of the Flatbrookville mail from Layton is 1.30. Applications to the proper officials would no doubt straighten this matter.

A writer in the Sussex Independent writing on the fish question asserts that if people were allowed to fish at will in our lakes, as was the way 30 to 40 years ago, there would be more fish than there are at the present time when the fish are so rigidly protected by law. His reasons are very good, and many of our veteran fishermen think just as the writer of that article does and would like to see the experiment tried in some lake, say for five years.

Hay and harvest will begin this week. The great trouble is the scarcity of help. The former crop will not be as good as was anticipated earlier in the season, while the latter will be an average, as the stand looks well.

F. L. Van Etten, an employee of the New York custom house, and family are enjoying their vacation among friends and relatives in Sandyston.

Eugene Hursb, on a Newark trolley line, is visiting relatives in this town on a vacation of one week. Eugene's appearance would indicate that Newark air agrees with him. During the thunder storm last week the tobacco shed of Alfred Bevans was struck and slightly damaged. The dwelling of Israel Struble, also near Bevans was hit, with little damage done. Near Walpack Centre the barn of Lin Van Horn was hit and one horse killed, and its mate injured.

We have something to be thankful for, and that is the taking off of stamps on checks and other writings. But what is to be done with those checks in which the stamps are imprinted? It is not likely that many in this section have a very large amount invested in that way, still one does not like to lose what is paid for and of no use. It won't hurt to leave the stamps on intoxicating drinks and the higher the better.

The terrific heat of the past week exceeded anything heretofore known in this section, and it was not only here, but nearly all over the country. The shower of Friday last lowered the temperature, and it is hoped the intense heat of the past week is a thing of the past.

PERSONAL AND LITERARY.

Senator Burrows, of Michigan, said in a recent after-dinner speech in Detroit: "In one respect at least I am unique. I am probably the only Michigan-er in politics who has absolutely no right to the title of lumber king."

Stephen Phillips, the poet, is a Cambridge university man, but never graduated. He won a scholarship, but at the desire of his cousin, Frank Benson, the Shakespearean actor, he forsook the university for the stage, against his father's wishes.

Senators Blair, Stewart, Pettus and Morgan are a patriarchal group in the upper house at Washington, but they are overtopped in age by the dean of the British house of lords, Lord Grey, who has just completed his ninety-first year. He took his degree at Cambridge in 1811.

"Substitutes for Saloons" is the title of a volume written at the request of the New York "Committee of Fifty," and is a practical study of the saloon and its place in the life of the workingman. It shows the immense social influence of the saloons and treats of the progress made by substitutes for them.

BUTCHERS' WRAPPING PAPER.

Brown Sheets of Old Supplanted by the White Roll Which is Far Superior.

A man who a few years ago carried home from the butcher's once in a while a brown paper-covered parcel as carefully concealed as a broad street or a convenient newspaper made it impossible to see what had become of the brown paper which was formerly used for wrapping up meat, says the New York Sun.

"Why is it you never see that kind of paper at your butcher's now?" he asked. "You mean what they call straw paper, of course," said the butcher. "Oh, yes, that's a back number, almost. You'll find it sometimes in a country butcher store, but hardly ever nowadays in a city store. Why is it? Oh, the white paper is cheaper and more convenient."

"You might not think so, but that is true. Ten years ago we had nothing but the brown paper. It came in sheets and reams and it required a lot of handling, and it was always in the way. Now almost every meat store has rolls of white paper, from which the clerks can tear off a piece of exactly the right size.

"The brown paper was more porous than the white. As a matter of fact the white paper is almost waterproof, whereas the old brown paper used to be soaked through in almost no time."

"It was partly on that account that people didn't like the brown paper. Men didn't like to carry home their purchases in such hideous wrappings. Nowadays we can put up a piece of meat in a neat, compact bundle of white paper and slip that into a fresh clean paper bag, and it's a pleasure to carry it home. That helps us, of course."

"There are a few places in the city where you will still find the brown paper. Those places are the big wholesale houses, and the only reason they keep it is that the drivers use it as paper for a sort of carpet for their wagons. The white paper, however, is sometimes used for that purpose."

"It might surprise you to know it, but we have calls for the brown paper once in awhile now. The calls for the most part come from persons who have young children in the family. Somebody discovered a while ago that you could make excellent hand-kerchiefs or pocketies out of this brown paper soaked with vinegar. We have to refer all applicants for the brown paper to some wholesale paper house. Yes, the times are changing, and not always for the worst, by a long shot."

Gobelins Tapestry. So important is their artistic merit and historic value that no history of tapestry is complete that does not include a description of their design and execution. For more than 200 years the existence of the great manufacture of tapestries was unknown to the modern world. Documents relating to its origin and productions were buried and forgotten in the mass of manuscript in the famous Barberian library, until a very recent date, when they were unearthed by Eugene Muntz, director of the National Ecole des Beaux Arts at Paris. In the popular mind all tapestries are associated with the Gobelins factories of France. Curious to relate, not a yard of tapestry was ever woven by a member of the Gobelins family. Immortality came to them from the fact that in the middle of the fifteenth century the founder of the family established a dye house, which became famous and brought the proprietors fortune. Descendants accordingly transported skilled tapestry weavers from Flanders, whose work they directed and marketed, until tapestry and Gobelins became then, as now, synonymous terms throughout the world.—Dignahoe's Magazine.
