

All Stuffed Up

This is the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat.

No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite.

To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic. I was afflicted with catarrh. I took medicines of different kinds, giving each a fair trial, but gradually grew worse until I could hardly bear, taste or smell. I then concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking five bottles I was cured and have not had any return of the disease since.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures catarrh—a swollen and strengthened the mucous membrane and builds up the whole system.

St. Valentine's Day.

This day, which was formerly much more observed than now, was originally a festival instituted in memory of the good Bishop Valentine who was beheaded with clubs and beheaded at Rome at the time of the heathen festival of love and purification Feb. 14, A. D. 273.

The 11th of April is the date fixed for a lecture by Dr. Ryman, to be given at Brown's Hall in the interest of the Sabbath school.

The question has been sometimes asked why the Lord did not make health rather than disease contagious. That disease is contagious no one doubts. It is my belief that health is also contagious. We come in contact with the germs of disease and contract them and become ill. We are continually in contact with healthy germs, or life germs, and with every breath and every particle of food that we eat we take innumerable germs of health into the system and if the air and food are pure we contract health as in the other case we contract disease.

The wise ruler of the Universe has made health, therefore, much more contagious than disease, since He has made the health germs that we contract so much more numerous than the disease germs in the struggle between health and disease, the former is the most constant victor.

U. S. Forester's Report. Gifford Pinchot, forester, has compiled a bulletin from the annual report which treats of the subject of forestry in the United States. The general progress of the work during the past year is outlined showing that there has been a steady growth of public interest in the preservation and wise use of forests and west especially there is a realization of the intimate relation of forests and waters and it is expected that this will in future be a powerful aid toward forest preservation.

Many private owners of lands have during the past year applied for assistance in handling their forests and the total number of acres so represented was nearly three million. Working plans have been prepared for the national reserves which embrace nearly fifty million acres.

During the coming year studies will be made of forest fires, of forest products of various woods with a view to determining those suitable for the manufacture of excelsior, and to show the value of various woods as fuel compared with that of hard and soft coal. Tree planting will also receive special attention and already applications have been received for several large tracts.

For this reason we want to acquaint them with what we consider one of the very best remedies on the market for coughs, colds, and that alarming complaint, croup. We refer to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it in our family so long and with such good results that it has become a household necessity.

By its prompt use we have not a doubt but that it has time and again prevented croup. NARROWMINDED OFFICIALS

Through the refusal of the two democratic county commissioners to sanction the publication of the auditors' settlement in the Press its readers will be deprived of the privilege of examining the county affairs in the paper of their choice. We believe there is not another county in the state whose commissioners are controlled by such petty narrowmindedness. It is not a question of economy with them, for the county finances, thanks to the justice of a republican legislature and the efforts of republican members, are greatly increased by the payment of part of the Erie bonus into her treasury. It is simply because these two men having it in their power chose to deprive a large class of readers in the county of information to which they are entitled and to the cost of publishing of which they largely contribute. But these citizens have no rights, except those of paying taxes, which these autocrats of the commissioners' office care to respect. Farmers may have a daily reminder of the men who censor their information because every time they visit their barnyards they hear the familiar B-A, and those are the initials of the behind names of the two county commissioners to whom we refer.

A PROSPEROUS PAPER

The Blairstown Press this week celebrates the twenty-fifth anniversary of its founding and contains an excellently written article giving a resume of its history, sketches of its several editors, a summary of events transpiring in its neighborhood, changes in its staff, complimentary words for its correspondents, recapitulates some of the changes in the town and notes the progress of the village. It is a well edited paper and deserves the prosperity which it has attained. One distinguishing feature of its history is the marked favor which its efforts have received from the people in its section who evidently appreciate the value of a newspaper to the prosperity of a town. There are places where a few men think that if a paper is not devoted wholly to their own selfish interests it should be ostracized. They forget that the paper will no doubt long outlive them and that future generations may read from its files a record of their acts and judge them by that and not by what is inscribed on their tombstones—if they have any.

HOME AND CHILD

Does your horse "feel his oats"? What a difference between the grain-fed and the grass-fed horse!

The first strong and full of ginger, the second flabby, weak and tired out before he begins. The feeding makes the difference. Children are not alike either. One is rosy, bright-eyed, full of life and laughter, another is pale, weak and dull. The feeding again is responsible.

Sickly children need special feeding. They don't "feel their oats". Scott's Emulsion adds just the right richness to their diet. It is like grain to the horse. The child gets new appetite and strong digestion.

Scott's Emulsion is more than food. It is a strong medicine. It rouses up dull children, puts new flesh on thin ones and red blood into pale ones. It makes children grow. Scott's Emulsion makes ordinary food do its duty.

This picture represents the Trade Mark of Scott's Emulsion, and is the wrapper of every bottle. Send for free sample.
