New York TRIBUNE FARMER

For sixty years the NEW YORK WEEKLY TRIBUNE has been a national weekly newspaper, read almost entirely by farmers, and has enjoyed the confidence and support of the American people to a degree never attained by any similar publication.

THE NEW YORK Tribune Farmer is made absolutely for farmers and their families. The first number was issued November 7, 1901. Every department of agricultural industry is covered by special contributors who are leaders in their respective lines, and the TRIBUNE FARMER will be in every sense a high class, up to date, live, entertaining agricultural paper, profusely illustrated with pictures of the stock, model farm buildings and houses, agricultural machinery, etc.

Regular price, $1.00 per year, but you can buy it with your favorite weekly newspaper, THE PINK COUNTY PRESS, one year for $1.00. Send your subscription and money to THE PRESS, Milford, Pa.

Send your name and address to the NEW YORK TRIBUNE FARMER, New York City, and a free sample copy will be mailed to you.

THE POLITICAL ARENA

see the politicians propose but the people dispose.
DEMOCRATIC EXPECTATIONS.
Democratic expectations have been running high during the past week. The activity and assertiveness of Mr. Elkin's promises have revealed the impression among the thinking that he will be the Republican candidate for governor, and the Democratic politicians are delighted over the prospect. Not only in the state, but in every congressional and legislative district, as well as in all the counties, Democratic hopes have been strengthened by the prospects of Mr. Elkin's candidacy.

Waiting Hopes of a Factional Candidate—Defeat Will Follow Machine Domination—The Man to Win Will Be the Man Who Represents the Party—Growing Strength of Colonel Watres—Senator Quay is Non-Committal.

NOT MR. ELKIN'S YEAR.
This is not Mr. Elkin's year. His position, his environment and what he stands for make his election an absolute impossibility, even if he should be nominated, and in his defeat he would drag down many an estimable Republican candidate throughout the state in addition to making the election of a Republican United States senator impossible. I have been a good deal among the people, and I find that this is the prevailing opinion. Can Mr. Elkin, as a young man of ambition, afford this, even if his backers and advisers bid him pay no heed to the inevitable? Can he afford to incur the displeasure of representative Republicans all over the state by accepting a nomination, even by the favor of the machine, in a year when he cannot be elected and when he would be instrumental in defeating many worthy members of the party? He may possibly regard it as a humiliation to stand aside, but it would be more of an act of courage on his part to do so, as well as an act of prudence as well. A wise politician should be able to look at facts and realize what they imply before he nominates, even by the favor of the machine, in a year when he cannot be elected and when he would be instrumental in defeating many worthy members of the party? He may possibly regard it as a humiliation to stand aside, but it would be more of an act of courage on his part to do so, as well as an act of prudence as well. THE POLITICAL ARENA
Pennsylvania's Two Candidates For Governor.
DOL. WATRES AND JOHN P. ELKIN

HISTORY WILL BE REPEATED.
In the event of a factional candidate, who is identified with ripper and trolley grab legislation, being forced upon the Republicans of Pennsylvania this year, history is likely to repeat itself. Twice in the memory of the present generation has the Republican party been beaten in Pennsylvania, despite its great majority, because of the fatuity of those who controlled the nominating power in thrusting undesirable nominations on the people. The same peril is present this year, but it ought to be possible to avoid the same mistake, since the same men are at the helm. Surely experience should count for something, and if it does the danger of defeat can be averted by the nomination of a gubernatorial candidate whose record, experience and integrity will commend him to popular confidence and support. The nomination of such a candidate would mean Republican unity and Democratic dismay. Since writing last week there has been no accession to the list of proclaimed candidates. There are only two in the field, to wit: Colonel L. A. Watres, of Lackawanna, and Attorney General John P. Elkin, of Indiana county. One represents the party, the other the machine. Colonel Watres stands for popular rule from the primary up. Attorney General Elkin represents the machine from the administration down. Indeed, Mr. Elkin, as the law adviser of the administration, is part of it just as he is part of the machine, while Colonel Watres is coming before the public on his merits, and in accordance with the best traditions of the party which have held in the past that it was the privilege of any of its members to aspire for any office in the gift of the people.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene relieved me in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good it did me. I was a slave, chained to my bed for ten years and Asthmalene cured me. I had tried every other medicine, but nothing would do me any good. I saw your advertisement for the cure of my distressing and tormenting asthma, and thought you had evensoken yourself, but resolved to give it a trial. My asthma, the trial cure like a charm. Send me a full-sized bottle."

Rev. Dr. Morris Wechsler, Rabbi of the Cong. First Israel, New York, City, says: "I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease."
