BRINGS SUMMER BOARDERS.

A Large Metropolitan Newspaper Which Is Helping the Summer Resorts.

The Brooklyn Eagle several years ago established a Bureau of Information in Brooklyn, where the public could, free of charge, secure details of hotels and boarding houses for the summer. The idea at once became popular, and branch bureaus were opened in Manhattan and other cities. Country hotels and boarding houses by sending to this Bureau can secure a listing blank, fill it out and return it and then be represented free of cost, and send their circulars and cards for free distribution.

The Brooklyn Eagle has also been considered for years the best medium for summer boarders in New York city.

The Rock Point Inn, in the Adirondacks, said: "We are giving the Eagle a larger share of advertising than most other papers, as experience has demonstrated its value to us in past seasons."

Chauncy B. Newkirk of Wurtsboro, Sullivan county, said: "Last season one small adv. brought me five guests."

La Rue Bros., proprietors of the American Hotel of Sharon Springs, N. Y., wrote: "Our house is full and mostly by Brooklyn people. Daily we receive applications for rooms, and all on account of our standing ad in the Eagle."

For Listing Blanks, Adv. Rate Cards and other information, address EAGLE INFORMATION BUREAU, Brooklyn, N. Y.

BURIED AMERICAN HISTORY.

Old Williamsburg in Virginia That Was Intended as a Chartered City Under Royalty.

Even in a country so recently conscious of the past as our own, there are buried cities awaiting the pluck of the historian. Of these, none is perhaps more interesting, certainly none more picturesque, more colonial and even to-day—more English than old Williamsburg, in Virginia—that "middle plantation," which in 1632 was "laid out and peopled," to become a chartered city, the capital of a great colony under king and crown.

Its three streets of the reign of William and Mary are its only thoroughfares and two "back" streets, hardly more than grass-grown lanes of to-day. Duke of Gloucester street, broad and generally hospitable, stretches industriously from the foundations of the ancient capital building on the east (of whose walls not one brick is left nor one white pillar of its portico) to the iron farm gate grounds at the western extremity of the town.

On the right, as one enters the college gate, is a charming mansion, the residence of the president of William and Mary, and upon the left, across the campus, stands the old Brattleton building, the earliest school for the education of Indians erected on American soil. In the time of Gov. Spotswood, says Country Life in America, it was necessary to resort to strenuous efforts to insure attendance, for the students were mainly hostages, the sons of chiefs of neutral or friendly tribes during Indian warfare.

FIRST MONT PELEE DRAMA.

A Play with the Martinique Volcano in It Produced in Paris in 1840.

It is scarcely to be expected that the dramatists ever seeking some new field for the scope of their efforts will long allow the volcanic eruptions at St. Pierre to escape them. But even the earliest to utilize any scenes of the recent eruptions will not be a pioneer in drawing inspiration from Mont Pelee, says the New York Sun.

It has been recalled by a Frenchman with a long memory that Adolphe d'Ennery, author of "The Two Orphans," "A Delicately Case," and about a hundred other melodramas, succeeded in getting before the public first with a play based on the volcano at Martinique. It was called "The Earthquake at Martinique," and was acted in 1850 at the Theatre de la Gaite in Paris.

The old play in spite of its horrors is said to have been very effective on the stage. In it, the villain who murdered an old man let his wife and daughter into a crater of the volcano 100 feet under the surface of the earth. There was a sudden earthquake and the villain fell into a cavity and was killed, while the woman and her child were rescued.

THE LOTTERY INIQUITY.

Survives in Spite of All Efforts of Civil Authorities to Stamp It Out.

The Louisiana lottery, the biggest of the lot, was driven out of New Orleans and out of the United States after years of attack by the postal authorities and the press. But the lottery still is still with us, says the Atlanta Journal. Savannah is the lottery center of Georgia. It is said that several men have made fortunes by dealing in lottery tickets. There is hardly a city of considerable size in the United States where lottery tickets may not be purchased.

Mexico has a large number and variety of lotteries, which are liberally patronized in this country. Canada also supplies lottery tickets in great numbers to dealers in the United States and to individual purchasers. France, Germany and several other European countries help to satisfy the craving of our citizens who consider the lottery a quick and sure way to fortune. All classes of people supply the patrons who enrich the lotteries. Many persons of wealth buy lottery tickets regularly. The wage earners of the United States squander a large per cent. of their earnings in this form of gambling. Lotteries antedate civilization. Some of the earliest human records indicate the antiquity of lotteries. They thrive on the love of gambling, which is one of the most universal passions of men.

BUCKINGHAM'S EYE

Tree That Turns to Stone. There is a tree that grows in Mexico called the "chijol," or stone tree. It is of enormous proportions, both in circumference and height. It has a number of branches spreading out widely and carrying leaves of a yellowish green color. The wood is extremely fine and easily worked in a green state. It is not given to either warping or splitting. The most remarkable thing about it is that after being cut the wood gets gradually harder, and in the course of a few years it is absolutely petrified, whether left in the open air or buried in the ground. From this timber houses can be built completely fire-proof, and would last as long as though built of stone.
