RECOMMENDATIONS by the AUDITORS SETRAVALS OF CHARACTER. in the matter of the reputs to the bridge (atone work, etc.) nerose, the Dingmon erest mar Gune's hashkenith shore at Dingmon's Ferry in Delaware township, which reputs were done under the direction and space and the control of the other Country Commissioner Albright with the sameton and approval of the other Country Commissioner and or large enough to warrant the letting of a contract, the Country suffices find that the hills for the end reputs amounting to $180.25 are very excessive and that more continued that the reference may be about the first processing and therefore recommend that the County Countries in the Inture let us bridge work of any discription without first abouting the same to the lowest bridge.

OLDEST MAN IN RUSSIA.

A Seef, Who, at the Age of 127 Years Beining Many of His Faculties

The exar of Russia recently received in audience a man who, from personal knowledge, could tell the ruler about the times of Catherine the Great, the Nupoleopic invasion and the war of the Crimea. His name is Sinip (when he was been Russian pensants had no family name). He is 127 years old, and his former owner, Prince Wolkowski, was able to furnish the following and thentle data about him from his own archives: "Sinip was born 1775 as a serf, and drinks vodka and smokes as long as he can remember," reports a London paper. "Three pints are his limit, but he never was drank in his life." As the exar was able to perceive himself. Simip's eyesight and hearing are perfect to this day. Every Sunday he walks sight miles to church and never has required charity of any kind. He still earns his brend by knit ting and sandal making; also tends to the borses and poultry. The old fel-low's memory is most remarkable. He told Nichelas several facts regarding the Napoleonie invasion not contained in general history. Sinip's father died at 80; his mother at 120, working as a field hand up to a few days before her death, and Sinip himself never had a day of Illness.

Children of a Russian Convict Found in the Beart of a Siberian Forest.

A party of Russian geographers un-der Col. Pavovoski, traveling through an unknown tract of Siberian forest country recently, came upon a large natural clearing, where they foun about a hundred wild-looking indi viduals clad in skins and speaking bad Russian. They were the children and grandchildren of an escaped conviet, who had managed to run away from the mines in 1830, reports London exchange.

The convict, whose name was Matwander and Matreyeff, finding a suitable spot in the midst of a dense forest, settled there with his wife After ten years of incredible hard ship and teil they built a house am managed to till a little soil. As the years went on the children managed to secure Kirghize wives, but as they
