SANDYSTON.

One day last week as a hired man was mowing the grass alongside the road, near Bevens, he found 15 beer bottles lying in the grass scattered about. I have found a number and almost every house has a lot of beer bottles picked up along the road.

The beer seller must make a good profit to make up for the loss of so many bottles. "The Bottle Act" of 1898 provides a fine of from 5 to 25 dollars for any person having those bottles in possession or a term in the jail of not less than 10 days or more than six months or both at the discretion of the court.

Harvest is about over and the general opinion is that the yield will not be up to the average. Haying is going ahead with a rush and in spite of the severe drought in early summer the crop will be a fairly good one. Corn does not look a promising yield and will be the weediest crop grown in this section in many years.

I hear a great deal of grumbling about the building of so many small bridges in this town. Our taxes will be something that will make the taxpayer swear, and the building of so many stone bridges helps pile up the taxes, while many bridges are totally unnecessary.

Mr. Whittier, wife and children passed through Layton Saturday en route for Flatbrookville on a pleasure trip. Mr. Whittier is engaged in business in Newark and his family is summering at Branchville. Last summer they boarded at Layton and made many warm friends here.

The farm buildings on the farm of J. J. Vansickle are the best painted set of buildings in this valley. Painted white, with red and green trimmings they present a handsome appearance. W. C. Hursh and Gus Best did the work.

There are two poor paymasters; one who never pays and the one paying before hand. The latter was duly exemplified the past week.

Samuel Swartwout and Enos Johnson, two aged colored men, are staying at Mrs. Clara Tuckers for an indefinite period. They are inmates of the county almshouse and being very infirm are permitted this outing. Both have lived here almost all their lives and everybody has a kind word for the old men whose journey of life is almost ended.

The Beemerville and Hainesville base ball clubs played again at Hainesville Saturday last. The score at the close of the game stood 28 to 28 in favor of the Beemerville club. If the Greater New Yorks or Chicago could pile up runs like that they could capture the pennant sure.

Jacob Vansickle and wife and Charles Ramor of Bucyrus, Ohio, are stopping at the club house at Bevens and Jake is giving his Ohio friends the time of their lives. With excursions and fishing they are passing the time until Aug 5 when Jacob will return to Ohio.

Mr. Anson, P. Rosenkrans of Stillwater, this county, passed last week with his son Elijah at Layton. Mr. Rosenkrans formerly resided here and despite his 80 odd years is just as erect and active as many men of half his years.

Talk about hard times when one can get rich for a half dollar or less and if he happens to get too rich he laid away until the effects have passed off and he is as poor as ever. Sometimes one gets so rich that he becomes abusive and he goes out of the bar room end over end and gets up madder than a wet hen. No such thing as hard times here.

As Henry Ellett was driving along the road near Bevens Saturday night he came in collision with James Clifford who was driving in the opposite direction. Ellett's horse got away, and beyond slight damages to his wagon he went home.

The contractors building the new road propose putting on a stronger force of Italians this week. I am afraid snow will fly before that road is fit for driving.

Mrs. Lizzie Drake of New York, a sister of Mrs. C. E. McCracken of Layton, is spending a few days with her sister here.

The loose stone in our roads are entirely too numerous for the comfort of the traveling public, but our overseers of road are very busy with do for an excuse.

I wonder what excuse H. L. will have to offer now that the Jersey horses cleaned up the Milford horsemen last Saturday. H. L. did you drop anything on the race?

I am informed that Samuel Hazelton, who was engaged to teach the Brick House school for $12 per month, has hired to teach the B. grammar school at Stroudsburg at a salary of $50 per month. Mr. Hazelton taught the public school at Layton, N. J., for the last two years and gave good satisfaction.

The berry crop in this section has been a failure and those owning swamps are right in charging one dollar a pan for the swamp whortleberries. Pretty steep price but the public must have them.

DINGMAN'S FERRY.

Farmers are busy in hay.

Miss Kate Layton recently visited Danville, Pa.

The school directors hired teachers for the Delaware school last Saturday with the exception of the principal for the Delaware academy. No one is yet chosen for that position. We understand the Academy is to be merged into a graded school.

The hall storm last Wednesday was truly a destructive one in Center District. There were two storms that afternoon, each accompanied by hail, but the first was the one which destroyed growing crops and the latter which overthrew buildings and uprooted trees. Alonzo Cron lost his entire crop of buckwheat, Nathan Emery lost his corn and buckwheat crops, as did Henry B. Van Auker also. The damage at Ardornish is estimated at $50 in the garden alone, we hear. Many gardens were in a manner ruined. Trees in great numbers were blown down at Joseph Canne's, Gabriel Cron's and H. B. Van Auker's.

I was with a company of ladies and gentlemen last Monday in quest of huckleberries. After searching for berries without much success for a time one of the party, Calvin Cron, stepped on a huge black rattlesnake and narrowly escaped being bitten. The snake was dispatched by David Cron. About ten minutes later David Cron ran on two large yellow rattlesnakes and killed them both. The desire for berries seemed to have waned and the party drove home.

Calvin Cron's little daughter Lenah by selling soap orders for a certain firm secured a fine writing desk which she presented to her father. Some time since she secured a set of nice window curtains and a rocking chair which she gave to her mother and father respectively.

Mr. and Mrs. Walsh of Germantown, (Port Jervis) have been spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Martin of Dingmans. Mr. Walsh met with a severe railroad accident some months ago and is slowly recovering. W. H. L.
